Maryland Jersey Sets U.S. Production Record

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

KEYMAR, Md. — A Jersey from the herd of Jim and Sharon Osborn and family, Queen Acres farm, set a new U.S. production record with a 6-year, 7-month record of 365-day, 3x, 38,030 milk, 4.6% 1732 fat, 3.5% 1333 protein. Queen-Acres Boomer Celeste, EX 90, a homebred Soldierboy Boomer Sooner of CJF daughter, was fresh a year at the end of July, and is still making 100 pounds of milk a day, according to the Osborn's daughter Debbie.

The farm, near Keymar, is a family operation involving Jim and Sharon and their daughters Debbie Osborn and Rebecca Lippy. Another daughter, Sarah Welty, is an ag teacher. They currently milk 157 Jerseys and a half-dozen other dairy cows, including sever-

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — One expert says that although multisite production will be the future of the hog industry, segregated early weaning (SEW) systems won't be a magic bullet to prevent swine disease.

If producers want to implement segregated site production, they have to carefully consider the ventilation systems, the feed and water, and the medication program, according to John Chapman,

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau named Charles Brosius, former state agriculture secretary, the recipient of its distinguished service award Tuesday evening during its annual member recognition banquet at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

Brosius and his wife Jane, of West Grove in Chester County, were presented with the award before an audience of hundreds of PFB members, state legislators, and other guests.

The PFB's 47th annual meeting was held from Nov. 17-19 at the Hershey Convention Center. The meeting serves the organization in its policy development, organizational operations and member education efforts.

Over several days, delegates voted during several sessions on up to 120 policy suggestions.

The PFB also held a number of workshops and educational programs during the week covering topics that ranged from educated projections on the future of the dairy industry and what impacts it may have on producers, to food safety in the home, estate planning, and electric power deregulation.

Other events included an opening luncheon featuring state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. as speaker; several board meetings; its Young Farmers & Ranchers program meetings and a fund-raising auction; marketing cooperative annual meeting; as well as recognition of high sales with the Nationwide Insurance Enterprise, a separate entity sponsored by PFB.

In presenting the PFB Distinguished Service Award to Brosius, PFB President Guy Donaldson talked about the involvements of Brosius with the Penn State Board of Trustees (he had to step down to accept the position of agriculture secretary), work on behalf of the mushroom industry and his own profitable family mushroom farming business.

Brosius has a degree in dairy science from Penn State in 1952, and developed a high-producing LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Five dairymen were elected to the new Land O'Lakes policy and resolution committee at the first fall eastern regional meeting at the Holiday Inn Lancaster Host Wednesday. They are Donald Bergey, Millville; Nelson Habecker, Lancaster; Walter Martin, New Holland; Jeff Moore, Centreville, Maryland, and Elvin Rohrer, Cochranville.

The new committee was formed as a result of the Land O'Lakes and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative merger earlier this year to form a national cooperative organization representing more than 7,000 producers and 8 billion pounds of annual milk production.

Citing a market which saw record high milk and commodity cheese prices last fall, followed by six-year lows this summer, Jack Gherty, president and chief executive officer, attributed ongoing dairy price volatility to a combination of decreased demand, increased milk production, and the Nurse Jane Zimmerman monitors Jim Wivell's home recuperation period in his Maryland farm home following his open heart surgery. A dairy farm daughter, Jane compares notes with Jim on calf-raising, one of his continuing jobs on the family's dairy operation. In a salute to November Home Health Care Month, several farm families share how home health care allows a person to live at home while recuperating from major illnesses. Turn to page B2.

Delmarva Broiler

ATLANTA, GA
NOVEMBER 19, 1997

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was seasonally slow. Seller offerings were adequate or available and extra supplies were difficult to place. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights varied in a range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were reduced or curtailed in several instances and were very light in total. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 48 to 62 cents. Trade sentiment was steady at best.

In the parts complex, wings and gizzards were in best demand and supplies cleared satisfactorily. Other items were fully adequate or available to a limited buying interest.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed, Nov 19, 1997

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids were slightly lower at close today. Some profit taking on the board was noted for all commodities and slowed export sales also weighed on bids. Wheat 1 to 6 cents lower. Corn 1 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 2 to 9 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 6 cents lower. Spillover weakness from corn and bean pits helped pressure wheat bids lower. This week's large export sale to Egypt, limited declines. Corn and soybean bids slid lower due to fairly active liquidation selling in reaction to this years large harvest. Farmers should be finishing up with fall harvest as favorable weather conditions are forecast throughout the week. Export demand remains very slow this week for corn and soybean trade.

We will be receiving tobacco on Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4 & 5. We want your tobacco on the floor to show our buyers and tobacco companies that week.

We are expecting more and bigger buyers. In the past we were always competitive with any price buyer – no matter what the price has been. At Paradise Sale Barn we still think we should be getting $1.92/lb.

Call Mitch White for trucking. We want to set up a pretty floor that week.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

NOVEMBER 24-30, 1997

NEW MOON, NOVEMBER 29.

MINDFUL OF MANNERS

Sitting at a Thanksgiving table with our friends and relatives is always a great chance to observe social nuance. For the occasion, we offer some famous thoughts on the subject.

Mark Twain defined good breeding as the art of "concealing how much we think of ourselves and how little we think of the other person." Albert Camus seemed to concur, saying that "charm is a way of getting the answer yes without asking a clear question." Dame Edith Sitwell opined that "good taste is the worst vice ever invented."

"I don't recall your name, but your manners are familiar."

– Oliver Herford

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ For stubborn wine stains on washable fabrics, sponge with hydrogen peroxide, then wash.

CHOCOLATE PIE

2 tablespoons cocoa
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
1 cup milk, heated
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
8-inch baked pie shell
whipped cream or meringue

Mix together cocoa, flour, and sugar in a double boiler. Add egg yolks and milk and cook until thick. Add butter and vanilla, stirring well. Cool. Pour into an 8-inch baked pie shell. Top with whipped cream, and chill, or top with meringue and bake at 325° F for 10 minutes, or until brown.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Catfish develop unusually thick skin on their bellies if it's going to be a hard winter.

When swans fly, the weather will be rough, usually within 12 hours.

Ice in November brings mud in December.

Special Offer

OPINION

Let's Hope The Appeal Is Successful

As reported last week, U.S. Minnesota District Judge David Doty threw out a Depression-era system of 32 milk marketing orders that pay farmers a price differential for milk based on their distance from Eau Claire, Wis. The ruling that a key portion of the country's milk pricing policy is illegal eliminates federal orders to all but a few geographic areas in the Southeast.

In the eight year-old lawsuit by the Minnesota Milk Producers Association, Doty ruled that the milk price system makes no sense. Farmers from the Upper Midwest have complained for years that the system was outdated and discriminated against them.

Actually, the judge ruled that the current Class I differentials in surplus and balanced federal order markets do not conform to the requirements described in the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act and are therefore illegal. This act is the enabling legislation for federal marketing orders, originally passed in 1937. The current Class I differentials may be legal in deficit markets that depend directly or indirectly on the Upper Midwest for alternative supplies. These markets are not named in the ruling.

To us, it seems totally irresponsible to change a national milk marketing system overnight, especially since the system has been in place for 60 years. Because of the immediate uncertainty the ruling rendered, some milk handlers were already refusing to pay established farmer prices in certain areas of the country.

Because we are concerned about the immediate effect the suprise ruling has on the dairy industry, we hope the dairy and government officials, including the national secretary of agriculture, will prevail in their appeal of the decision. The last thing we need is a disruption in the milk marketing field at this time when so many dairy farmers are already on the brink of giving up their farms.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Study Environmental Issues

The Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has announced plans to aggressively reduce non point source of pollution in the nations streams and rivers. Agriculture has been identified as a major contributor to non point pollution. Many best management practices (BMPs) have been identified and implemented by farmers that have reduced water pollution. These include storm water runoff, stream bank fencing, cover crops, nutrient management, crop rotation, diversion terraces, etc. Farmers need to be concerned about water quality and look for ways to prevent water pollution. If you have not already developed and implemented a soil conservation plan and nutrient management plan you should do so now. Farmers have a small window of opportunity to implement BMPs to reduce pollution before they are fined. Now is the time to start identifying and implementing these BMPs before it is too late.

To Make Your Rations Work

To often the ration you have on paper is not the ration you are feeding, states Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent. There are several things you can do to help improve ration formulation, ration quality, dry matter intake and overall performance of the herd. 1. Test ration ingredients for variations in moisture content. Then adjust feeding rates accordingly to maintain dry matter intake and nutrient intake. 2. Check the accuracy of scales and measure ingredients by weight, not by volume. 3. If you are using TMR, be sure the ration is mixed thoroughly. Do not over mix and destroy particle length. and 4. Push feed up to the cows several times a day to entice feeding activity and making it easier for cows to reach.

To Encourage Cows to Eat

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, offers the following ideas to ensure proper feed intake for cows. 1. Be sure cows have easy access to lots of good quality water. Is there adequate drinking space? 2. Keep the feed fresh. Feed often. Match silo size to herd size and feeding rates. Maintain a smooth face on the bunk. Clean up spilled silage. Protect silage from birds. 3. Remove stale feed and keep feed bunks and waterers clean. and 4. Group and feed heifers separately so they are not intimidated by older cows

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

YOUR PART OF THE GAME
November 23, 1997

YOUR PART OF THE GAME
November 23, 1997

Background Scripture:
Nehemiah 4
Devotional Reading:
Nehemiah 9:6-15

Those who know me, I believe, characterize me as a person who perseveres. (Some have stated it less delicately than that!).

I don't think I was born with perseverance. I think, rather, that early in my early life I decided that perseverance was absolutely necessary in life.

I remember when I was a Boy Scout reading an article in Boys Life, the official scouting magazine. I still remember the title of the article. It was called, "A Guy As Game As That," and it was a story about a young man who went to Notre Dame and wanted to play football there, although he was not a natural athlete and was relegated to "the scrubs." Then, along came World War I and he joined the army. During the war he was badly wounded. But, when he later returned to Notre Dame, he didn't let that stop him from making the team and earning his letter.

What called that influential article to my mind was coming across a quotation from a writer named Hulbert from his book Forty-Niners: "The finding of gold is luck; you will not be held blamable if you are unlucky. But making the journey, overcoming obstacles, fighting your way through, that is a matter of grit, not luck. Do that, get there, and you are absolved, you have mastered the part of the game that depended upon you." (Quoted by Irving Stone in Men To Match My Mountains.)

YOUR PART

"A Guy As Game As That" whom I so much admitted as a boy did exactly that: he mastered the part of the game that depended upon him. He couldn't control the circumstances of his life, the degree of his athlete ability was determined by his genes, but he took charge of the one thing that was in his control: he persevered.

Perseverance is also a Christian virtue. We are called to persevere, not for the sake of perseverance alone, but because we are in God's hands. We cannot persevere without trusting the providence of God.

Perseverance is what the story of Nehemiah is all about. Nehemiah persevered despite the obstacles that confronted him. He got the people to persevere even when the task seemed almost impossible. Their enemies laughed and jeered and that's enough right there to make lots of people quit. But Nehemiah met every one of these obstacles and stuck to his commitment.

IN THEIR MINDS

Their perseverance was to be found, not in their genes, but in their minds. "So, we built the wall; and all the wall was joined together to half its height. For the people had a mind to work" (4:6). Sticking to it began in the commitment they made. They mastered the part of the game that depended upon them: persevering — and God would do the rest.

But that was not the end of the matter. Their enemies, they learned, were plotting to stage a surprise attack upon them. Their enemies reasoned that the Jews could not both build the wall and guard against attack. The Jews themselves realized that, but Nehemiah set in motion a plan whereby half the people would work at building and the other half would stand guard. Would it work? They didn't know, but they stuck to it. They did their part and God did his.

That is really all that God asks of us — to do our part, to persevere, regardless of the obstacles. If we do, God will do his part.

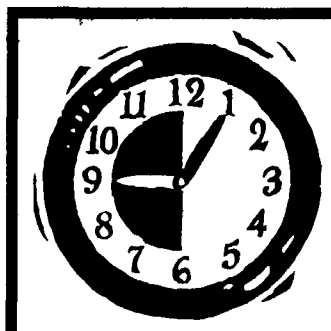
FULLTIME™ HAS TOP HERD WORKING OVERTIME.



Five years ago, Jacob Tanis believed "corn silage is corn silage," recalls Russ Judy, his Young's nutritionist. Then Tanis of Centre Hall, PA, tried Cargill FQ silage hybrids and increased milk production by 6,000 pounds per cow over a four-year period. Now he's taken another step to higher-quality feed with FullTime™ forage from Cargill.

Thanks to feeding high-quality silage and other good management practices, the Tanis herd last year was the state's top milk-producing herd, with a herd average of 31,393 pounds, according to DHIA data and was rated the highest for type in its size range by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

When Judy suggested that Tanis try new Cargill FullTime forage, he was receptive. He was sold on Cargill hybrids and he trusted Judy's judgment

Tanis gives Judy a lot of credit for his success with FullTime forage. "Russ does a good job of helping me feed my herd," Tanis says.

His confidence proved well-founded in 1996 Tanis saw a milk production increase of 6 pounds per cow per day with 96 cows on test with FullTime forage. There also was a noticeable improvement in the body condition of the cows, Tanis says.

Tanis planted 10 acres of FullTime forage in 1996, 20 acres in 1997 and intends to plant 30 to 35 acres next year.

This year, FullTime forage yielded as well as – or better than – other silage corn despite extremely dry weather, Tanis says. He estimates production at 15 to 20 tons per acre.

"FullTime forage can give top returns with best management practices, and obviously Mr. Tanis gave it close attention," comments Dan Froehlich, Cargill agronomic services manager

Dr. Froehlich recommends that dairymen plant FullTime forage after soils have thoroughly warmed up. "You should expect late-season growth spurts with FullTime, so be sure there's plenty of nitrogen available, perhaps by side-dressing. And be sure to plan harvesting based strictly on percent moisture content – 66 to 70 percent for bunker silos," he advises

"I'm extremely pleased with FullTime forage. I've never fed silage that I could get as much milk out of," he says. "I would recommend it to any producer who wants to produce milk cost-effectively.

FullTime™ clocks 7.2-lb. increase in MSU study. The big difference between FullTime™ forage and conventional corn hybrids is their relative level of digestible fiber. Digestible fiber is a primary factor influencing milk production. FullTime forage contains nearly 40 percent less indigestible lignin Cows fed diets containing this new forage product consumed more dry matter and produced more milk. In two university studies, cows fed FullTime forage consumed up to 8 percent more dry matter and produced up to 7.2 more pounds of milk per day. And body condition scores were maintained or improved.

Maybe it's time you took a closer look. Cows that consumed FullTime forage in a high-forage diet produced as much as or more fat-corrected milk than cows on normal corn silage in a high-grain diet, says Ed Nimtz, Cargill forage product manager. "We believe dairymen like Jake Tanis will demonstrate to the industry that FullTime can increase your income per acre by increasing the amount of milk you get per pound of feed. FullTime forage, when properly managed, has the potential for a 5 to 1 return on investment. Even a one-pound increase in milk production will cover the increased investment for FullTime forage," Nimtz says.

Jacob Tanis, left, used to believe silage was just silage according to Russ Judy, right, Young's nutritionist.

Introducing new DECTOMAX® Pour-On

When It Pours... It Reigns.

POWER

✗ Powerful Formulation Works Long After the Others Call it Quits
Its unique molecule, doramectin, keeps new Dectomax® Pour-On working overtime.

✗ Power to Outlast Lice
A recent study[1] with 20 cross-bred beef calves under severe natural challenge showed Dectomax Pour-On controls biting lice 12 weeks to reinfestation and sucking lice 14 weeks to reinfestation.

✗ Powerful Persistence
With one treatment, Dectomax Pour-On controls 31 stages of internal and external parasites.

✗ Power to Outperform the Competition
When it comes to the most economically devastating internal parasite, brown stomach worm, a label-to-label comparison shows Dectomax Pour-On has twice the duration of Ivomec Pour-On. Ivomec® Eprinex™ Pour-On has no labeled duration of activity against this costly parasite.

✗ Powerful Protection from Biting and Sucking Lice Guaranteed
We're so confident in the performance of Dectomax Pour-On, we guarantee it. Ask your veterinarian, animal health supplier or Pfizer Animal Health representative for details about Pfizer's LiceTime Guarantee℠ program.

✗ Powerful Convenience
Dosage is 1 mL/22 lb or 10 mL/220 lb applied topically along the midline of the animal's back from shoulder to tailhead. Available in 250-mL and 1-L bottles with handy, easy-to-calibrate dosing cups, and in 2.5-L and 5-L backpacks with easy-to-use draw-off applicators. Pours easily in cold weather. Safe for use in any age or class of beef cattle, including calves, pregnant cows and bulls. Labeled for use in dairy replacement heifers up to 20 months of age.

State Agriculture Secretary Unveils Action Plan

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. last week announced a first draft plan of action for the state Department of Agriculture — a first formal draft.

The draft action plan is, in effect, a department "to-do" list.

Last week it was reported in Lancaster Farming why there was a need for such an action plan, and what it is expected to do — provide a catalyst for the coordination and accomplishment of bureau activities within the department, in conjunction with the needs of the individuals and businesses it serves, to achieve more complete and effective support and service to the agricultural community and the residents of the state to improve business opportunities and profitablity.

In brief review of what was reported last week, Secretary Hayes revealed an 80-point list of "actions" or goals the department is to achieve. The list was created through meetings between Hayes and the department's bureau leaders and deputy secretaries.

In a cover letter to the action plan, Hayes calls upon others to join in making suggestions for additions to the action plan.

•Create an International Users Guide to Pennsylvania Agriculture.

•Prepare regional (regions of the world) marketing plans to target international customers by geographic regions.

•Develop marketing plans for agri-services. (Hayes said he considered agricultural services to be an agricultural product with existing international marketing accomplishments, as well as great potential.)

•Conduct a pilot project for promotion of Pennsylvania-grown fruits and vegetables in over 100 food stores.

•Develop a promotion project for Pennsylvania wines. (Pennsylvania is a leading national wine producer with strong exports and about 40 percent of product available to market.)

•Conduct a feasibilty study to consider formation of a marketing cooperative for Pennsylvania's agricultural products.

•Sponsor a seminar on "How to Export Wood Products" with the Pennsylvania Rural Development Council. (Pennsylvania is one of the nation's strongest holdings of hardwoods. The Northeast, Northwest and Mid-Western states, as well as southern states are strong timber production, but much is in conifers converted into paper and pulpwood, or used in the construction of composite building materials. Hardwoods are used in the higher-valued furniture and cabinetry building business.)

•Activate the regional hardwood utilization groups in the promotion of the Pennsylvania Sustainable Forestry Initiative (PA-SFI) by training loggers, educating private landowners and conducting public outreach. (Much of Pennsylvania's forests are privately owned and there are some lumbering companies or businesses that seek to profit through somewhat deceptive practices. Some outfits may promise an initial marginally higher profit on the sale of timber, though in the process destroy future profits. Some have used forestry harvest practices that can strip a forested property of its valuable lumber, while leaving it either unfit, or improperly prepared for the regeneration of valuable species. Educated landowners and loggers can make better decisions for maintaining forested properties for its highest and most rewarding values.)

•Create an "Agribond" program for first-time farmers. Though this was not part of the published action plan, Hayes said he considered it a likely addition to the action plan. The agribond would allow the government to provide guarantees to allow banks to make low-interest loans to first-time farmers (it doesn't mean those without any farming experience).

•Recruit hardwoods companies for Interbuild — the world's largest construction and building show.

•Participate in the USDA Foreign Agricultural Service "American Style Wood Frame Housing Seminar Series," to develop trade relationships and promote Pennsylvania wood products.

•Participate in the governor's trade mission to Asia.

•Initiate a contract for agricultural trade assistance in Mexico.

•Establish a food processing relationship with the Republic of Poland.

•Identify the agricultural trade barriers to be considered by our negotiators at the World Trade Organization.

•Convene an aquaculture summit and compile an economic analysis concerning the potential of aquaculture in Pennsylvania.

•Develop a plan to promote agri-tourism.

•Conduct an annual "Ag Research Symposium" to present results of research projects sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

•In addition to tradition agricultural research projects, there wil be emphasis placed upon future PDA-funded research in areas of critical importance to agriculture and the general public, to include:

a. International market analysis and export opportunities for Pennsylvania products and services.

b. Application of technology in the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture from a marketing perspective.

c. Identify new nutrient management systems that are environmentally and economically feasible.

d. Feasible methods for the suppression of agricultural odors.

e. Application of technology in the PDA from a client-service perspective.

•Good learners need food food. Initiate a food safety education program as part of the PDA's new responsibilities for school cafeteria inspection, including a food safety manual for schools — "Pennsylvania Food Products: Serve them hot, serve them cold,

(Turn to Page A25)

Hayes also prefaced a review of the 80 separate goals with the caveat that it be understood that priority has not been assigned to the goals. They are all to be achieved, if they haven't been achieved already.

It was also to be understood that there are more goals and ideas for providing valuable services, but the list was kept at 80 in order to establish a first draft.

"We have more inventive ideas; but now, it is time to receive the thoughts of our partners," Hayes stated in the cover letter. "I invite the General Assembly, professional agriculture, and the citizens of Pennsylvania to join in, suggesting additional ideas for our Action Plan for Pennsylvania Agriculture. For sure, we should nurture our agriculture together."

During the meeting with farm media, the plan was reviewed through an inhouse created, computer-generated video that provided more details and breakdowns of the action plan.

The printed version provides an "executive summary" of the plan. It follows, with some clarifying information included in parenthesis:

Action Plan For Pennsylvania Agriculture
Executive Summary

•Convene an annual Secretary's Summit on Agriculture which will serve as an ongoing symposium to address all aspects of agriculture, to include profitability.

Farm Safety
Just Kids

Prior to the establishment of Farm Safety 4 Just Kids, a study by the Harborview Injury Prevention and Research Center estimated that 300 children and adolescents were dying each year from farm injuries, and that another 23,500 were suffering nonfatal trauma. An update of that study now indicates that the farm fatality rate for children and adolescents has declined by 39 percent.

With the help of Cargill Hybrid Seeds and other corporate sponsors, Farm Safety 4 Just Kids is celebrating its 10th year of advocating the prevention of farm-related childhood injuries, health risks and fatalities. Through educational programs and a large network of grassroots volunteers this nonprofit organization is leading the way to a safer future for the children of today's farming communities.

PSU Dairy Science Club Honors Houser

JUDY PATTON
Union Co. Correspondent

At its annual dinner meeting on November 14 at the Penn State Ag Arena, the Penn State Dairymen's Club honored dairyman Jay Houser with a Service Award and discussed Penn State's future as a land grant university. Dr. David Morrow, who was the 1997 World Dairy Expo Person of the Year and is a Penn State Trustee, led the discussion.

Jay Houser, who with his wife Mary owns and operates Penn Dell Farm in Centre County, received the club's Service Award for his outstanding contributions to and achievements in the Pennsylvania dairy industry. Over the pat 34 years he has built a herd of 75 registered Holsteins with a current production average of 25,574M 988F 818P and a BAA of 107.9. He has bred 142 cows with over 100,000 pounds lifetime milk production and 30 with excellent classifications, and he has sold young sires for progeny test programs.

The current president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, Houser has received the Holstein PBR Award from the national Holstein Association for the last 25 years. He has been a Pennsylvania delegate to the national Holstein Convention.

Houser's outreach efforts have included being a 4-H dairy leader for over 30 years, participating in high school career days, and hosting tours on his farm. He has served an committees and boards of Sire Power, Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Agway, Centre County ASCS, and the Centre County Extension Service. His community service includes being a volunteer fireman and a church council member.

Houser's five children are all in production agriculture, and he has helped many young farmers get started in the dairy business.

Dr. Morrow, who is a former veterinary science professor at Michigan State University, said Penn State won't become a "dinosaur" in fulfilling the mission of ag education as a land grant university if it makes the right changes. Program interation with other universities and industry as well as with other colleges at Penn State must happen, he stated, citing the example of the new agro-ecosystems major involving four colleges.

Morrow also emphasized the need for closer ties with industry as far as funding research and educational programs. Only 15 percent of Penn State's funding now comes from the state, and the level is dropping, so the need for what was previously considered "dirty money" by academicians must be accepted, he said. Programs must also be geared toward preparing students for leadership positions in industry.

Economic implications of all phases of research and teaching programs must also be considered, Morrow said. Technological developments must be evaluated for practical uses and potential profit, and product marketing as well as production and processing methods must be studied.

Morrow feels the university should keep in touch with legislators at all levels on agricultural issues to help them design adequate government policies. Such issues as consumer perception of agricultural products, food safety and quality, and waste management must be addressed.

Hiring faculty and staff members who are in the top three or four programs in the country to fill positions is another key to Penn State being a top land grant college in the future, Morrow said. He reported that the Board of Trustees is also reviewing the tenure system for faculty members, which may be revised to include a post-tenure review to assure continued work quality.

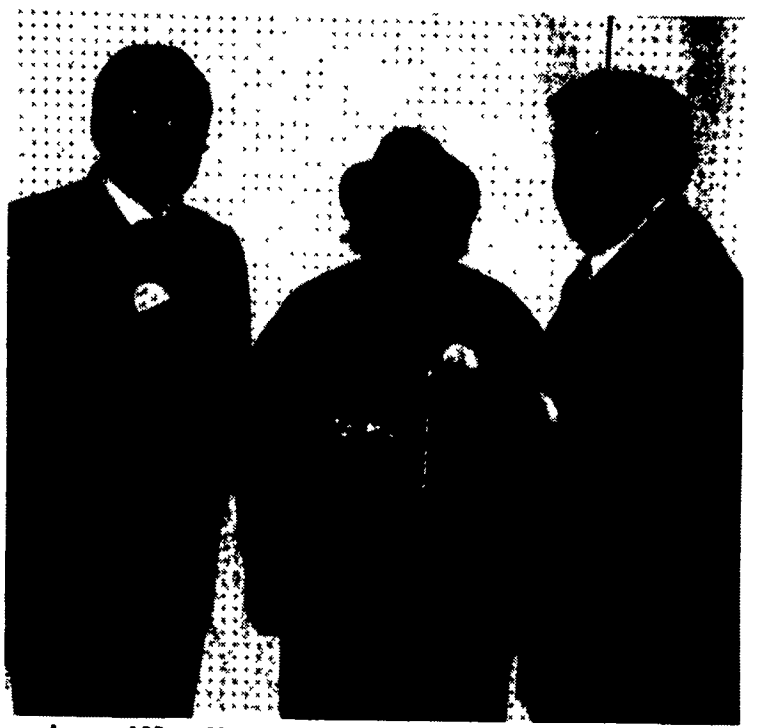
Also at the club meeting Penn State Judging Team coach Dale Olver reported on the results of the fall competitions. The Dairymen's Club has an endowment fund which helps support judging team activities. Team members were Crystal Miller, Cambridge Springs, Rachel Tanis, Centre Hall, Chris Connelly, Pennsylvania Furnace, and Cory Meyers, St. Thomas.

At the Eastern States Exposition, the team placed first in Brown Swiss and Holsteins and second overall. Meyers was high individual overall and Connelly third. The team was also second overall at the Pennsylvania All-American and second in reasons, having placed firsts in Jerseys and Holsteins. Meyers was second high individual, first in oral reasons and in Jerseys, and second in Holsteins. In the National Intercollegiate Contest at Madison Penn State was seventh overall and was in the top five for three breeds. Connelly and Meyers were honored as All-Americans. The team placed third overall at Louisville.

Chris Connelly, a junior who was named a 4-H All-American dairy judge at the World Dairy Expo, is the recipient of the 1997 Poage Grant-In-Aid. Former dairy judging team coach Warren Poage endowed the grant for judging team members.

Dr. Daniel Hagen, interim head of the Penn State Department of Dairy and Animal Science, reported that 18 positions in the College of Agricultural Sciences are to be filled, including department head and a new faculty member to teach animal management. He said student enrollment this year is up by 14 undergraduates and six graduate students.

The Dairymen's Club also elected three new board members to replace outgoing members Mike Countryman, Dave Livermore and Sharon Wagner. They are Andy Foster, Carrie Bryant and Tammy Weaver, who will join Robert Davis, Jeff Hostetter, Kirk Sattazahn and Charles Seidel on the board. Club officers are Chris Swartz, president, Peter Witmer, vice president, and Beth Raney, secretary/treasurer.



Jay and Mary Houser of Penn Dell Farm in Centre County accept the Penn State Dairymen's Club Service Award from Peter Witmer, club vice president.

Almost 800 Attend Two-Day Housing Expo

Segregated Early Weaning No Magic Bullet In Preventing Swine Disease

White Oak Mills representative.

"Multiple-site production may be necessary to compete in this industry long-term," Chapman told about 100 producers on Tuesday at the annual Animal Housing Expo at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

The Housing Expo, a housing industry exhibition event with a variety of livestock housing contractors and related industries, emphasized swine and dairy, including a segment conducted by Chapman on how to finish swine on dairy farms.

Chapman spoke about the use of three-site production: one for breeding, gestation, and farrowing; one for the nursery; and one to be used as a finishing site.

The White Oak representative noted a "significant improvement in sow herd health and pigs" by the use of the three-site system.

Some producers can still benefit from a single-site system, where smaller farms will benefit from efficient use of labor and decreased production costs. But for large farms, a multiple-site production system will do a lot control disease, increase overall performance in terms of feed conversion and daily gain, improve biosecurity, and improve overall herd health.

Chapman outlined the plans for one multiple-site farm. In it, pigs were eventually moved into a 1,000-head, all-in/all-out finishing barn from a 1,040-head early wean segregated facility.

Before entering the segregated facility, however, they were moved out of 400-head farrow-to-wean nursery. Pigs are moved by the use of old, stripped-down school buses.

Right away, the segregated system meant an improvement in the weight of pigs. Swine moved from the offsite nursery to the finishing floor were coming in, at the same age, at 68.7 pounds each. Pigs the same age going to the finishing floor at an onsite contemporary location were weighing less, at only 59.8 pounds, in tests by White Oak.

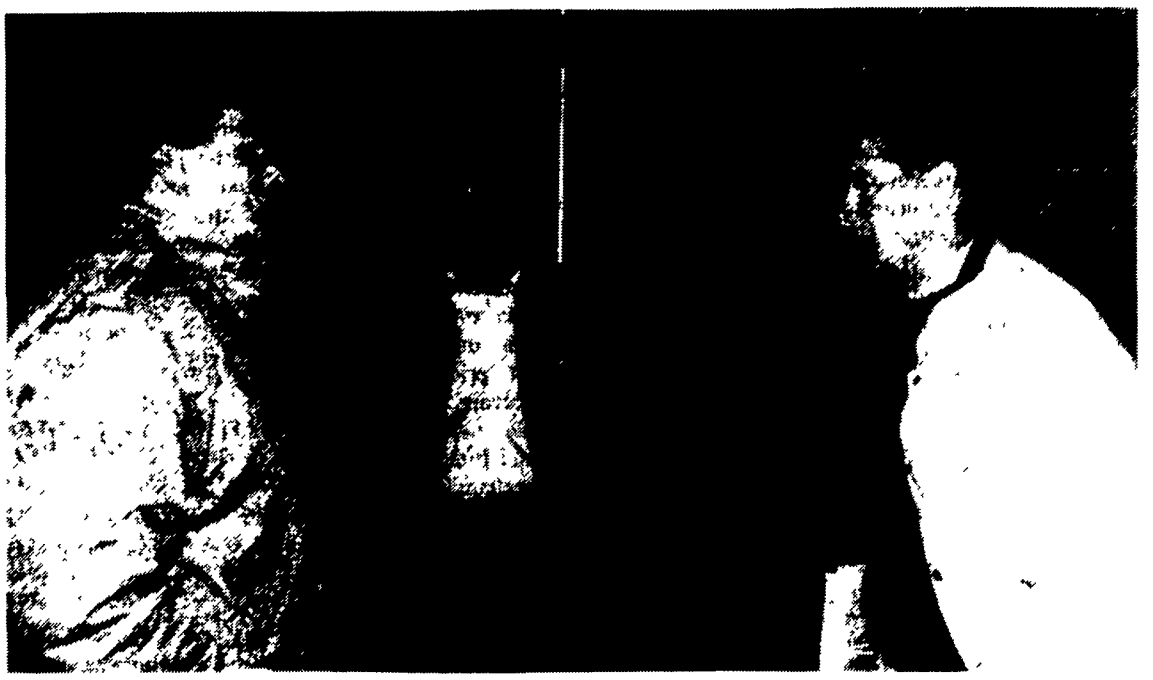
Hogs were moved from the nursery to the finishing floor at about 7½ weeks. White Oak concluded that the younger the pigs are at weaning, the heavier they are at any given day of life compared to their contemporaries.

"It's been a learning experience for us," said Chapman. But one important factor in getting good herd health: ventilation.

"Keep talking ventilation for a long time," he said. "Ventilation (of the facilities) is key to getting them off to a good start.

We had to learn to work that ventilation, to get it working properly."

Another vital factor: feeding and water are critical. The company became flexible in the use of adapting the pigs to the nipple watterers.



On Tuesday, swine producers spoke on a panel about their experiences with different systems. Ray Martin, Voganville, left, has been a swine producer for 17 years. Barry Geib, White Oak Mills serviceman, center, is also a swine producer who is involved in the Network Pork Service, which includes eight farmers. Nelson Beam, right, is a producer with 210 sows in Elverson, who uses a modified wean-to-finish operation.

"Multiple-site production may be necessary to compete in this industry long-term," John Chapman, left, told about 100 producers on Tuesday at the 6th annual Animal Housing Expo at the Lebanon Fairgrounds. At right is Larry Jacobsen, extension ag engineer with the University of Minnesota, who also spoke at the Expo.

At the Expo, John W. Ferry, veterinarian and management consultant from Adams, N.Y., spoke about some of the critical steps to review before deciding to expand facilities.

The Housing Expo, a housing industry exhibition event with a variety of livestock housing contractors and related industries, emphasized swine and dairy, including a segment on how to finish swine on dairy farms.

The company has experienced good results in using SEW. It has resulted in gains of more than 8/10 of a pound per day, improved feed conversions, and mortality has been reduced to 2 percent (it used to be 4 percent, noted Chapman).

"In our system, we feel (SEW) has been good for us," he noted, "but it doesn't eliminate all problems."

Other management strategies are put to use to combat an array of diseases, including Porcine Respiratory and Reproductive Syndrome (PRRS), Swine Influenza Virus (SIV), streptococcus suis, and actinomyces pyogenes. Pyogenes is a respiratory disease in swine, similar to strep. It's a lung infection that can infect the spinal column.

Not all vaccines can work all the time. The efficacy depends on management and cleanliness, and diseases won't necessarily be eliminated simply by going to SEW, Chapman emphasized.

The cost of going to a separate nursery is below $4.50 a hog. If producers want to go this route, Chapman noted they must carefully examine how this will affect the total percentage of overall costs.

Minnesota producers have actually had success with a stripped-down version of a segregated system that makes use of only two sites, according to Dr. Larry Jacobsen, extension ag engineer with the University of Minnesota, who spoke at the Housing Expo. Essentially the system eliminates nurseries and moves pigs at very early ages right into the finishing floor.

Moving 10-pound pigs into the finishing barn can actually look "pretty gutsy," said Jacobsen. "It's really wild going to that big finishing barn and seeing those little pigs."

While not an expert in wean-to-finish design, Jacobsen said he has spoke to producers using the two-site system and found some interesting experiences.

But the two-site system "avoids the issues and problems of middle-nursery site" systems, according to the ag engineer.

Jacobsen gave an example of a 1,000-sow farm in Martin County in southern Minnesota. The business, a three-site operation for five years, was converted from a three-site production to two-site in December 1996.

The Martin County, Minn. farm finishes about 25 pigs per sow per year. Obviously, "they were doing a lot of things right," Jacobsen said.

The facility uses a Midwest curtain finishing barn. The building measures about 44 feet wide. There are two rows of pig with a center alleyway. The building is also equipped with mechanized ventilation.

Jacobsen noted that wean-to-finish systems offer several advantages, including labor savings (saving on washings), reduced trucking costs (thousands of dollars go into moving pigs on three-site systems), and further improvement in daily gain (at 15 days old, pigs were gaining .8 to 1 pound a day, and feed conversion ranged from 1.65 to 1.4 pounds of feed per pound of gain. Mortality was reduced to 3 percent.

The two-site system provided a more uniform group of hogs to go to market. And "healthier pigs translated to better production," he said.

Finishing floor pigs have about 7.5 square foot per pig of area to roam in.

The biggest challenge came in moving the young pigs to the finish barn, to use more "TLC," Jacobsen noted, as in "tender loving care.

"You need to be a very diligent manager," he said.

The feed troughs had to have trough panels installed to keep the pigs from lying down inside the feeders. Also, the barn, in the winter, had to be tightened up with plastic layers on the outside. In addition, horizontal bars were installed on the bottom of the grating to keep the pigs from slipping through or underneath the pens. Also, a solid and heated creep area demanded some modifications. The pigs still needed to be kept warm for at least the first four weeks.

The creep area worked out to about a square foot per pig.

Heat lamps were used to supply about 10,000 BTUs each. Other types of heating systems, including room air heaters, were put to use. Temperatures were kept at about 75 degrees in the barn.

For some producers, weaning at

Mid-Am Calls For Hearing On Basic Formula Price Floor

SPRINGFIELD, MO. — Citing economic conditions forcing dairy farmers out of business at an alarming rate, Mid-America Dairymen Inc. asked Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman to hold an emergency national hearing to set the Basic Formula Price (BFP) for Class I and Class II milk at $13.50 per hundredweight (cwt.) in all Federal orders. (The Class I and Class II differentials in the respective orders will be added to the $13.50 floor.)

"We believe there is sufficient economic data to justify granting the hearing on an emergency basis," said Bill Blakeslee, Mid-Am corporate vice president of marketing and planning. Blakeslee and Mid-Am will submit data at the hearing to justify granting the requested price floor for Class I (fluid milk) and Class II (cultured products) milk from January through December 1998.

As support for the request, Blakeslee cited data in the USDA's February 1997 Marketing Service Bulletin, published by the Southwest Plains market administrator. The publication shows a significant decrease in per-capita milk production in the Southeast, Midwest, and Upper Midwest areas between 1990 and 1996.

"The percentage decrease is higher in those areas with high Class I utilization," said Blakeslee, noting that most forecasters predict this trend will continue. "The continuation of this trend violates the Congressional mandate to the Secretary that 'prices shall be established at levels to maintain productive capacity sufficient to meet anticipated future needs.' We believe these 'changed circumstances' justify the establishment of the $13.50 BFP floor for 1998."

In calling on Secretary Glickman to implement the floor-pricing system, Blakeslee cited data assembled by the American Farm Bureau Federation, showing the number of dairy farms decreased nearly 25 percent during the past five years. The data further indicates a 6 percent reduction in dairy farms in 1996 and 1997. "This continuation of the downward trend in dairy farm numbers jeopardizes the ability of the dairy industry to meet anticipated future needs of milk for Class I and Class II purposes."

Blakeslee also noted the difference between the all-milk price and the dairy-feed price has dropped dramatically since 1990. "Dairy farmers cannot remain in business at sub-standard income levels," he said. "Many dairy farmers are remaining in business by depleting equity in their dairy operations, hoping for economic improvement. They will not continue on this course indefinitely. We expect the liquidation of dairy operations to increase, unless something is done to stabilize the situation, and preserve sufficient productive capacity to meet anticipated future needs of milk for Class I and Class II purposes."

In addition to his call for a national price-floor hearing, Blakeslee thanked Secretary Glickman for taking action on Mid-Am's request to file an appeal on the recent Federal court ruling that would eliminate Class I price differentials. "This ruling would be a disaster for U.S. dairy farmers, if it were to go into effect," said Blakeslee. "Milk prices would be reduced by as much as $3 per cwt. in some areas, forcing many dairy farmers out of business."

Segregated Early Weaning

15 days can be an option. But not only do the pigs survive, Jacobsen said, they thrive.

On Tuesday, swine producers spoke about their experiences with different systems. Ray Martin, Voganville, has been a swine producer for 17 years. Barry Geib, White Oak Mills serviceman, is also a swine producer who is involved in the Network Pork Service, which includes eight farmers. Nelson Beam is a producer with 210 sows in Elverson, who uses a modified wean-to-finish operation.

Martin echoed Chapman's comments about the necessity of ventilation. "Ventilation management is critical," said Martin. It is "completely different than what I was used to."

Beam uses a wean-to-finish system that, instead of removing the pigs, removes the sow from the young stock. "The key in our system is to manage that sow in her breeding schedule," Beam said.

Chapman also spoke about setting up a swine finishing system for producers not familiar with raising swine. The key is setting up all the particulars, correctly, with the contractor. Many basic systems involve a 2,000-head finishing floor, which, when finished, can be attractive to dairy producers. Most labor is about 1½ hours a day in the system, mostly checking on water and feeders and caring for the hogs.

Duff George, hog procurement for Hatfield Quality Meats, explained the AutoFOM Carcass Payment Program under way at the packing plant.

At the Expo, John W. Ferry, veterinarian and management consultant from Adams, N.Y., spoke about some of the critical steps to review before deciding to expand facilities.

Ferry said, "It's not important how many barns you build, but how you plan each barn."

He said that successful dairies pay more attention to the dry cow and calving than worrying about the milking facilities.

Ferry also emphasized the need to plan the expansion based on needs, not wants, and to get firm bids on all the projects.

Also, a scheduled dairy producer panel on expansion to new facilities on Tuesday was to feature panelists Scott Nolt, Mike McMahon, and Ed Quigley. Another panel on improving existing facilities was to feature, on Wednesday, Dale Hoover and Jay and Ron Kopp.

Wednesday's program finished up with Ferry's discussion of managing the new facility and how to get better performance out of the farm's employees — both the two-legged and four-legged kind.

1997 Field Crops Market Update

Despite regional differences due to the cool spring and summer drought, corn and bean harvest in the northeast is progressing ahead of the normal pace. As harvest continues, producers could consider modifications to their marketing plan for the 1997 crop.

In Pennsylvania, east of the Susquehanna, corn sells at a premium to the Chicago Board of Trade price because of the relatively small crop acres trying to feed the dense livestock population. When considering possible marketing alternatives this season, here are some numbers to keep in your mind.

Pennsylvania Livestock Statistics:

- swine breeding stock inventory up 12%
- June pig crop up 12%
- 10% more sows farrowed during the third quarter
- average litter size up 2%
- sows intended to farrow during fourth quarter up 22%
- sows intended to farrow first quarter of 1998 up 14%
- layers up 2%
- egg type chicks hatched up 3%
- broiler chicks hatched up 7%
- cattle on feed up 16%

In addition to considerations for the consumers of regional grain, there is the world wide concern for El Nino. Even if weather patterns are not significantly altered, the market can react merely to opinion about possible El Nino effects. Other factors relating to marketing alternatives through the coming months are: PA grain production 25% below last years crop, 30% reduced hay yield and soybean production up 12%.

National News

When the national market is considered, there are some elements effecting grain prices that are not directly related to current year crop production numbers. There is a shortage of rail cars in the corn belt. This results in a short term stock piling of grain at central elevators. Near term, this bolsters prices. But, long term the large national harvest will eventually come to market. US grain sorghum production is down 19%. This has the effect of increasing demand for corn.

The tight world feed supply of late 1996 and early 1997 tends to put a reasonable price floor under US farm prices. At current 1997 projected corn production estimates (US) the September 1998 carryover will be at average levels. This carryover is fully able to support expected demand. But, not able to cover any shortages caused by weather problems.

International View

South American soybean farmers sold heavily this past spring and summer depleting their reserves for processing needs to fill European demand. This can be supportive of US bean prices through mid February. Brazil and Chile are into their planting season now. Intentions of increased soybean acreage plantings will have to be balanced against weather concerns and credit needs in South America.

Watch for any extended periods of rain or low temperatures for these competitors. Chinas' current oilseed crop was reduced again this year in the face of expanding chicken and pork numbers. As the Chinese standard of living continues to rise, the feed for meat animals will have to come from the world market.

On The Home Farm

Remember, plan the work, then work the plan. Market conditions are impossible to predict. The first priority of a farm financial manager is to cover the cost of production. Speculation in commodity markets should only be undertaken with risk capital, not with what is needed to handle fixed and variable costs.

The following table illustrates the different price advantages and disadvantages Pennsylvania farmers face as we move through the final months of the year. This table compares the average price received by producers in the Commonwealth with the average price received by US producers.

serve them safe."

•Initiate a collaboration with the PDA, the Base Realignment and Closure Commission (BRAC), school districts, cafeterias, and Pennsylvania fruit and vegetable growers in a pilot project to provide school children with nutritious food at less cost.

•Conduct food safety training seminars for schools, county fairs, fire companies, campgrounds, day care centers, and churches and publish a "User's Guide to Food Safety."

•Provide financial resources, policy direction and administrative oversight to the conservation districts that are assisting the State Conservation Commission with implementation of its nutrient management plan.

•Amend the "Agri-Link" low interst loan program so it is accessible to farmers participating in Pennsylvania's new nutrient management program.

•Establish dirt and gravel road standards.

•Coordinate an interagency effort to implement dirt and gravel road grant program.

•Initiate a dirt and gravel road training program for conservation districts.

•Strengthen quarantine administration and communication from laboratory to clientele.

•Conduct an avian (influenza) symposium.

•Formulate an avian influenza vaccine for H7N2. (Already done. The vaccine was not used in the recent avian influenza battle in Lancaster and Lebanon counties for at least two major reasons — it could have jeopardized some of the export market for poultry; and it could have the potential for promoting the development of the virus from its low mortality, generally non-lethal form into its deadly virus form. Government control actions included condemnations and destruction of infected flocks, cleanup, biosecurity and a state-police supported quarantine of a large area around the sites of infected flocks. The current stockpile of vaccine is good for two years.)

•Establish an A.I. protocol and field inoculation plan.

•Pursue a "green industry" initiative to ensure increased quality and compliance.

•Engage in a collaborative effort to produce a documentary on dairy economics.

•Coordinate a collaborative effort to convene a dairy futures conference. (Already being done.)

•Develop a strategic plan for the establishment of an Equine Center at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

•Initiate operations at the new PDA Equine Toxicology and Research Laboratory at West Chester University.

•Interconnect the microscopes via satellite technology in the PADLS for collaborative and simultaneous diagnostic purposes. (Already done between PDA Diagnostic Lab and Penn State University animal diagnostic laboratory. Connection to University of Pennsylvania lab still to come.)

•Upgrade the Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center. (Located at Penn State University Main Campus, the center continues to be useful, though it needs modernization in order to continue to provide information useful to the competitive health of the state's livestock industry.)

•Appoint a study committee to develop a strategic plan for a futuristic Farm Show Exposition Center.

•Implement administrative recommendations of Legislative Budget and Finance Committee report for the Farm Show Complex.

Erie County Dairyman Named PFGC Spokesperson

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — "Think about it," says Union City dairyman George Heintz during his presentation, "The Northeast could grow grass better than most other areas." Heintz delivered his speech at the 1997 Northeast Quality Forages Conferences to a small, but attentive group of farmers and other agriculture professionals who traveled to the Shadowbrook Convention Center to take in the one-day event, Tuesday, November 18.

Because of his strong belief in intensive grass production and his commitment to maximizing forage quality, Heintz was selected as the 1997 Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council spokesperson. As the state winner, Heintz will move on to represent Pennsylvania at the American Forage and Grassland Council convention in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Key to maintaining his 19,000-pound rolling herd average on his 20-cow dairy is making quality forage. He relies heavily on grass haylage consisting mostly of orchardgrass with some perennial ryegrass and reed canarygrass.

In areas of the Northeast where alfalfa is not a viable option, carefully managed grass could rival alfalfa in quality, Heintz noted as he gave his presentation which was entitled, "Making grass work when alfalfa won't."

Orchardgrass is largely the cornerstone of his operation because of its ease of establishment, it does well on less than well-drained soils, it tolerates and prospers with heavy manure applications and it's very palatable, among other reasons.

Harvesting the grass is one of the most important areas of management. Heintz challenged farmers to be aggressive, be prepared, watch weather patterns and be committed to succeed. His plan of action is to mow as early as possible anytime between May 15 and May 31, with little regard to the stage of maturity.

"Mowing preboot puts little stress on orchardgrass," he said.

He also dared farmers to mow that field even if there are wet spots that can not be harvested.

"If you have wet spots in the field, mow around them. Be progressively more aggressive mowing the closer you get to May 31."

Keeping your eye on the weather is also a very important job. Heintz notes that you should watch for a three to four-day dry period. He warns not to cut at the start of a rainy cycle, but that its OK to cut during the last rain of a cycle if necessary.

Heintz further advised that farmers should not have more than a two-day wilt mowed at a time and that a good haylage making technique should be used. Lastly he noted that more high quality haylages are compromised by choosing too wet rather than too dry forage. The ideal moisture range is from 40 to 65 percent.

"Aim for 50 percent," he said.

After all was said and done, Heintz left with a bit of advice for all his fellow Northeast farmers, "Maybe it's time to get your grass in gear," he said.

Notice Of Milk Hearing

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN pursuant to the Milk Marketing Law, 31 P.S. § 700j-101 et seq., that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Milk Marketing Board ("Board") will on its own motion conduct an emergency public hearing for all milk marketing areas on December 2, 1997, commencing at 2 p.m. in Room 110 of the Agriculture Building, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

The purpose of the emergency hearing is to receive evidence concerning whether — in the wake of the recent federal court order enjoining the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture from enforcing Class I differentials — the Board should adopt for its own interim use the differentials in the federal marketing orders.

The hearing is being called on an emergency basis to provide for a prompt, short-term response to virtual deregulation of the federal Class I price.

The staff of the Board is deemed to be a party to this hearing and to have complied with the following filing requirements. Other persons who wish to present evidence may be included on the Board's list of parties by (1) having their attorney file with the Board on or before November 28, 1997, a notice of appearance substantially in the form prescribed by I Pa. Code § 31.25 or (2) If unrepresented by counsel, filing with the Board on or before November 28, 1997, notification of their desire to be included as a party.

Presubmission of testimony and exhibits is not required. However, copies of written testimony and exhibits shall be provided at the hearing to members of the Board and to all other parties, with at least twenty (20) additional copies made available in the hearing room by their sponsor.

Parties that wish to offer in evidence documents on file with the Board, public documents, or records in other proceedings before the Board, or who wish the Board to take official notice of facts, shall comply with, respectively, I Pa. Code § 35.167, or 35.173. Whenever these rules require production of a document as an exhibit, copies shall be provided to members of the Board and to all other parties, with at least twenty (20) additional copies made available in the hearing room by their sponsor.

A prehearing conference for all parties will be held at 10 a.m. on December 2, 1997, in Room 110 of the Agriculture Building.

The filing address for the Board is Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board, Room 110, Agriculture Building, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

Landowners participating in the easement program are required to have a soil and water conservation plan on their farms which meets the PA Clean Stream Law and may be required to have a Nutrient Management Plan if concentrated animal numbers are a part of the agricultural operation. For more information on preserving your farm, please contact the office at 717-840-7448/7400 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Farms selected for preservation will be notified in March of 1998.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Rex F. Lothrop recently announced for December 1997 a Class I price of $16.06 per hundredweight and a Class II price of $13.13 per hundredweight.

The December Class I price includes the 20-cent assessment for fluid milk promotion and consumer education.

The Class I price and the Class II price are up four cents from November but are $1.30 lower when compared to year earlier levels.

Mr. Lothrop announced a Class III milk price of $12.91 per hundredweight for October 1997 and a Class III-A price of $13.58 per hundredweight for the month. The Class III price was up four cents from the previous month, and the Class III-A price increased $1.63.

The December 1997 Class I and Class II prices and the October 1997 Class III price are based on the October 1997 basic formula milk price of $12.83 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The October 1997 butterfat price was $1.6056 per pound, up 45.40 cents from September. The October skim milk price per hundredweight was $7.56.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chiacgo for October was 1.3735 per pound on the mercantile exchange and the Central States nonfat dry milk price was $1.0691 per pound.

government's continued movement out of the dairy market.

"In today's very challenging dairy environment, Land O'Lakes is extremely sensitive to its responsibility to recognize and respond to producer-member needs and contribute to member profitability," Gherty told the 500 meeting participants. "It's clear we will face continued, even increased, market volatility, particularly with the phasing out of the Commodity Credit Corporation and dairy support prices."

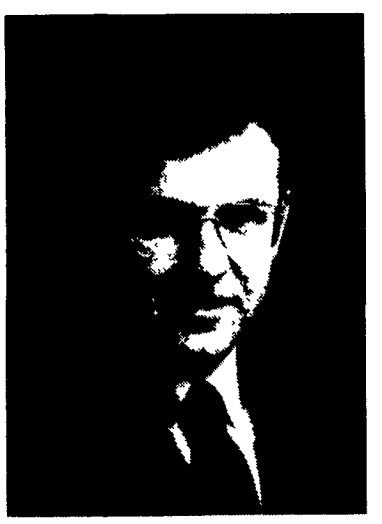
The cooperative's CEO went on to detail efforts to reduce the impact of market volatility on producer-members. These efforts focus on increasing overall dairy product consumption; supporting premium pricing, and adding value to producers' milk beyond the pay price.

At the farm level the cooperative offers a competitive pay price for milk; supports efforts to enhance producer returns through Class I pricing; develops programs to help producers increase productivity and reduce costs, and develops new risk-management options, including forward milk price contracting.

Since the cooperative is a national and international manufacturer and marketer of dairy products, they naturally put a lot of effort in maintaining position in product lines and market areas. Among the dairy foods strategic initiatives he outlined were upgrading the use of producer-member-milk and expanding the cooperative's presence in value-added markets.

Gherty also announced that Bob Dever, manager of eastern operations, will become vice-president for public affairs early next year. And Jim Fraher will assume leadership responsibility for the eastern operations.

Land O'Lakes is a national food and agricultrual company. It is a leading processor and marketer of dairy products, particularly cheese and butter, throughout the United States, and serves international customers with a variety of food and animal feed ingredients.



John Gherty, president.

FFA Leaders with a Vision

Brosius Receives Pa. Farm Bureau Distinguished Service Award

registered Guernsey herd that was dispersed in 1963 to make room for expansion of the mushroom business.

Currently, he and his wife and three sons oversee the annual production of 2.5 million pounds of mushrooms, as well as brokering and prepacking for other growers and providing daily delivery to wholesale markets.

Brosius became Gov. Tom Ridge's selection for state secretary of agriculture following a couple months of conjecture and speculation about who Ridge was going to pick. Ridge had formed a selection committee which sought out potential candidates for the job and then made recommendations.

Although Brosius was a surprise selection among those who follow state politics (given several published reports about several Lancaster County potential candidates that implied a choice was imminent), he was quickly hailed as a great choice because of his community reputation for being nonpartisan, no-nonsense, mature in his actions, and a strong advocate for policies which allow agricultural operations to be profitable in order to preserve them for the health of the economy, as well as the environment.

A number of advances were initiated and some projects and programs brought to fruition during Brosius's tenure. However, in a surprise move earlier this year, Gov. Ridge requested his resignation, citing no fault with Brosius, and thanking him for his help and support.

While the matter was not fully explained, the governor's press office stated that the move represented the governor's desire for a change in direction for the department.

Shortly afterward, Ridge announced that his long-time acquaintance Samuel Hayes Jr., of Warrior's Mark, had accepted the invitation to take the position.

Hayes is retired as a state representative and Republican leader in the House of Representatives, was a former school teacher with high qualifications, is a well-known agricultural and rural advocate and international activist in farming education, as well as a lecturer with the Juniata College.

He had been in Poland helping to teach and develop rural education at the time of the announcement, and he accepted the position upon returning to Pennsylvania.

On Tuesady, upon accepting the honor, Brosius said that he was thankful for the opportunity he was given to serve as secretary, that he learned a great deal about state government, and that farmers in Pennsylvania should consider themselves lucky to have such talented legislators representing them in Harrisburg.

He said that he learned that no one can work alone in Harrisburg, and that the Legislature is filled with talented, well-meaning people who are quick to provide help to agriculture given they are provided with an unified and sensible position on issues.

He urged the agricultural community, including Farm Bureau members, to work to provide politicians with a unified front on issues of concern, and to let them know what issues are important.

The PFB also recognized the winners of its Young Farmers & Ranchers contest.

While the awards were first presented during a luncheon, the winners were recognized during the banquet.

The Young Farmer and Rancher Achievement Award was presented to Myron and Lorene Bonzo of Rochester, in Beaver County.

The Bonzos, along with the other finalists, were featured in the Nov. 15 issues of Lancaster Farming.

The PFB also recognizes achievements of county bureaus.

The Lehigh County Bureau was named the All-Star County for 1997 for excelling in nearly of the 19 program catagories recognized by the PFB contest. It was also named the top achiever among county bureaus with more than 500 members.

Lehigh has 552 members and its president is Arland Schantz of Zionsville. Berks County had won the award for the six consecutive preceding years.

In the awards for overall program achievements, based on membership catagories, Huntingdon County was named the winner amoung counties with 370 or fewer members; while Snyder County was the winner among county bureaus with from 371 to 500 members; and Franklin County was second to Lehigh among those with more than 500 members.

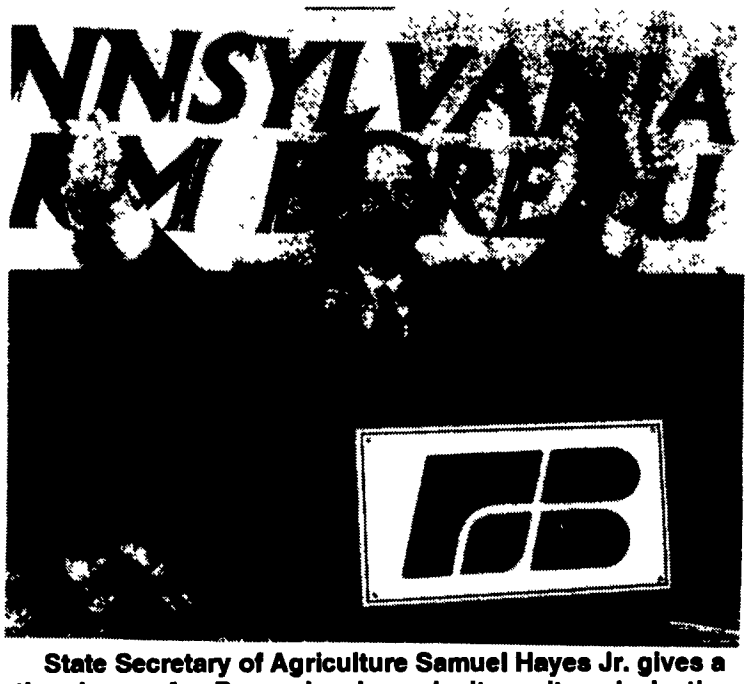
In other business, the PFB — as do some other confirmed grassroots farm and rural organizations — develops its policy at the local level first.

Local policy suggestions are forwarded to the state policy committee, which condenses the suggestions and consolidates them to eliminate redundancies.

The PFBH's body of locally elected delegates then reviews the recommended policies and votes on them for adoption by the state group. The PFB is expected to soon prepare and publish a complete package of its updated policies.

Among some of the more noteworthy policies developed, dairy concerns were among some of most significant, especially given the recent federal court ruling in Minnesota that Class I milk differentials (higher prices paid for drinking milk) in 28 federal milk marketing orders are illegal.

If the ruling stands, it would reduce farmer income significantly and most likely force an even greater exodus of small-volume producers from the industry.



State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr. gives a thumbs up for Pennsylvania agriculture, its role in the future of the state and the health of the economy, and receives a standing ovation from the Pa. Farm Bureau.

It is believed that the price of milk would become the same for all uses, under the ruling, which would leave producers with a much-below cost of production price for milk.

While U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman has appealed the ruling, the industry has to be prepared for any eventuality.

What the PFB apparently is seeking is a unified position from the dairy industry to support the efforts of the USDA to complete dairy market reform mandated by the 1996 Farm Bill to be completed next year. The reform is expected to address the concerns raised by the court in the matter, though having to abide by the court decision could severely upset the transition of the industry into further deregulation.

This week, delegates approved policy putting Farm Bureau in support of regional compact pricing to improve producer prices, including the possibility of joining the North East Dairy Compact in New England, or forming a tri-state compact with New York and New Jersey.

The delegate body voted to continue opposition to giving the United States agriculture secretary authority to set temporary milk prices that would artificially stimulate milk production.

It also approved policy recommending that the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board establish Class I differentials, independent of federal order regulation, to be pooled among Pennsylvania dairymen, if the recent ruling becomes effective and federal order Class I differentials are eliminated prematurely.

Because Pennsylvania is unique in having the PMMB, it is the only state that has the legal mechanism in place to deal with the court decision.

(The PMMB has the authority to set up Class I differentials, although some warn that doing so could open the gate for unregulated milk to enter the state from other states, and put instate producers and processors out of business.

On the other hand, some question how long outside production could flow into Pennsylvania when producers would be going bankrupt to try to take over the Pennsylvania market.

If the price of milk falls by another $2 per hundredweight because of the disapearance of the federal Class I differential, as some have forecast; if current supplies are as tight as some believe, and hauling costs and other overhead are not much different; and if many producers are already operating at a loss as is widely believed; then it would seem that producers from out-of-state should not be expected to be able to supply enough volume of milk for long enough to compete with and eventually replace locally produced and processed milk.)

Other policies include recommendations that the state Department of Agriculture be the only agency authorized to enforce the seasonal farm labor laws, with regard for farm labor camps. Current regulatory oversight involves other state and federal agencies.

The delegate body also approved:

• A recommendation to eliminate the collection of $1 per head for beef promotion on the trade of animals weighing less than 300 pounds, as well as for beef animal sold for less than $50, and eliminated completely for dairy cattle sold strictly for dairy purposes.

• The creation of a number of programs and support for the promotion of the wine industry in Pennsylvania including the reestablishment of a demonstration vineyard by Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, and the preservation of a law that requires the use of 100 percent Pennsylvania-produced fruit in Pennsylvania-produced wines.

• That the state Farm Show Complex be modernized, enlarged and enhanced at its current location in Harrisburg.

• That formic acid be immediately registered for use in the control of varroa and tracheal mites which are parasites of honey bees, in order to ensure crop pollination. The parasites threaten native honey bee species and numbers have declined significantly.

The timing of the PFB policy development coincides with the normally very active end-of-the year legislative session.

The state General Assembly normally breaks for the holidays and reconvenes in January.

A full session of the Legislature has been set by the state Constitution to run, "... during the term for which its Representatives are elected." Those are two-year terms. Senators are elected to four-year terms.

At the end of a session of the Legislature, all proposed laws are dropped from further consideration. In order for a matter to receive the attention of the state Legislature, it must be reintroduced.

This enables the new Legislature to make a fresh start, though many of the same issues are reintroduced session after session.

For politically active organizations, such as the PFB, it helps to have policy statements as recent and relevant as possible when presenting it to state legislators.

The timing also helps the PFB develop policy on new issues that may have developed into matters of immediate concern to the state Legislature since the last PFB annual convention.

Policies adopted also become forwarded to the national Farm Bureau Federation for consideration in developing nation policy.

In elections, Carl Shaffer of Mifflinville was re-election to a two-year term as vice president. He has been serving in that capacity since April 1996.

Also re-elected as directors with two-year terms were Allen Roszel of Montrose in Susquehanna County; Milford Kinsman of Troy in Bradford County; Roxy Levan of Milton in Northumberland County; and john Hileman of Hollidaysburg in Blair County.

Newly elected to the board were George Moyer of Myerstown in Berks County; P. Joseph Musser of Newburg in Franklin County; Donald Horner of Tionesta in Clarion County; and Elliot Lengel of Mercer in Mercer County.

Moyer is a dairy farmer and has served as membership co-chairman for his county Farm Bureau. Musser is also a dairy farmer and former president of his county Farm Bureau. Horner is a crop farmer and county bureau membership committee chairman. Lengel is a dairy farmer and past president of his county bureau.

Mid-Am Delegates Vote 'Yes' For Consolidation

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Delegates of Mid-America Dairymen Inc. (Mid-Am) have voted to support the consolidation of Mid-Am into a new dairy marketing cooperative to be known as "Dairy Farmers of America." Mid-Am president Carl Baumann announced the vote results during Mid-Am's monthly corporate board meeting.

According to Baumann, 91 percent of Mid-Am's 499 delegates cast mail-in ballots favoring the consolidation. A similar percentage voted their approval of an amendment to the Mid-Am articles of incorporation changing the name of Mid-America Dairymen Inc. to Dairy Farmers of America, a necessary first step in the process of forming the consolidated organization. Delegates were asked to vote on the proposals, after attending member/delegate information meetings held throughout the Mid-Am membership areas.

"The widespread support of our membership for this consolidation shows they understand the need to bring dairy farmers together for greater strength in the marketplace," said Baumann. "The new Dairy Farmers of America will be an organization that can provide the kind of marketing unity and services we need to succeed, as the dairy industry adapts to changing consumer demands in the coming decade."

The vote by Mid-Am follows overwhelmingly favorable votes to join the consolidation by members of Western Dairymen Cooperative Inc. (WDCI) and delegates of Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI). Delegates of Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI), the fourth consolidating cooperative, will vote on the consolidation at their annual meeting in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania on November 24.

If the MMI vote is favorable, the new Dairy Farmers of America cooperative will be operational on January 2, 1998. The new cooperative will have 22,000 members in 42 states.

Maryland Jersey Sets U.S. Production Record

al Jersey crosses, with a RHA of 18,400. That puts them 7th in the nation for milk, 10th for fat, and 6th for protein, of all Jersey herds 80-149 cows, according to the American Jersey Cattle Association.

Debbie stressed that Celeste's high production was not a fluke; she has always been at least 6000 pounds over her herdmates for every lactation since she was two. Each lactation she has been a state record winner, and for her 3 and 4-year-old records she was on the National Class Leader lists (the top 10 cows for milk, fat, and protein). "To be on it one time is really good, but I don't know how many cows out there have actually repeated in lactations," said Debbie.

Celeste comes from a cow family that has excelled at putting milk in the tank for the Osborns. Her mother, Lyon Pride Brass Moondance, was giving 80 pounds a day at the time of her death. Celeste has two milking daughters in the Queen-Acres herd. So far, first daughter to complete a lactation had 18,000 pounds at 1 year 11 months. Her second daughter is milking in the high 90's as a 2-year-old. The rest of her offspring have been sold as calves or exported. She was flushed in September, and has a flush pick going in the silent auction at the All-American sale. She will be flushed one more time, and then bred back to carry her own calf.

Debbie Osborn says Celeste achieves her record-setting production levels without getting any special treatment. She gets the same TMR as all other cows in the herd. After she freshened with her last calf they did try putting her in a box stall, but Celeste wanted to be at the feed bunk with the rest of the herd. "We have two cows in the herd right now that are milking really well, and I call them no-fuss, no-muss cows. They're either eating, chewing their cud, or sleeping. There's no wasted energy," said Debbie.

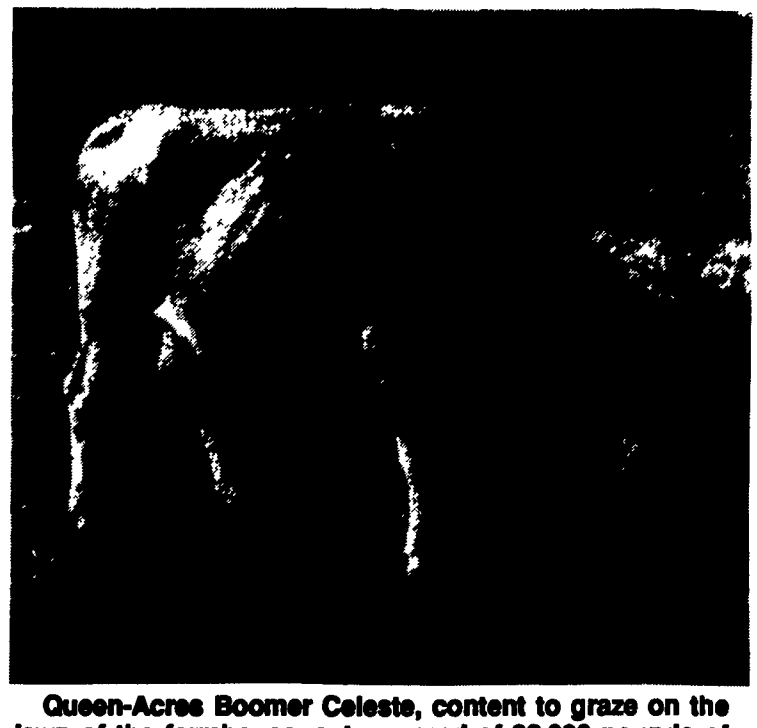
At one time the Osborns separated their cows into a high and a low group, but combined them all when the low string got to consist of only 2 or 3 cows. All cows get a TMR of cotton seed, corn silage, hominy, pelleted concentrate, and alfalfa hay.

The Osborns farm 350 acres. Their home farm, at 250 acres, goes half in to corn for the silo and half into wheat and double crop beans. They rent an additional 100 acres that is all hay ground. "It's pretty simple, but it works," explained Jim Osborn. They have four full-time employees, three to help mostly in the field and one, Annie Karlen, who milks the third shift and helps with the calves. They raise all their own replacements, and according to Sharon. "We've always had more than our share of heifer calves.

The family started out milking Holsteins, but gradually changed over to Jerseys. Debbie got her first Jersey in 1981. "I just wanted another breed to show in 4-H," she explained. Eventually the Jerseys grew in number, and when about half the herd was colored, the Holsteins were sold off. Debbie sees the smaller size and durability of the Jersey breed as big assets, especially in a year like this one. "It's really good to have Jerseys because you have an 800 pound cow that's giving 100 pounds a day versus a 1600 pound cow giving that much milk. You don't have to feed them as much." She also attributes greater cow comfort to the Jerseys' tough hooves.

The Osborns have been milking three times daily for one year. The decision to switch from 2X was based primarily on cow comfort. Sharon explained, "The cows would get so full of milk they were uncomfortable and had trouble walking," when they were being milked twice a day. "The increase in production has been minimal, but the increase in cow comfort has been dramatic. We've also seen a drop in somatic cell count," she said, "Basically, we found we had healthier cows that were in a better mood." The cows are milked in a double five parlor.

Debbie has maintained interest in showing Jerseys, and takes a show string out each summer. This summer she won every production trophy for every class she entered. The Osborns also make it possible for some children to be active in Jerseys who otherwise might not have the opportunity. The 4-H aged children of Thomas and Joann Bentz keep their Jerseys on the Osborn's farm. Rebecca, Joshua, and Sadah Bentz don't live on a farm, but are active in showing dairy cattle. They keep their project heifers at home, and when the heifers freshen, move them to Queen-Acres. The arrangement gives the Bentz children an opportunity to stay active with the cows, and also to travel to the shows where they assist Debbie with the show cows.



Queen-Acres Boomer Celeste, content to graze on the lawn of the farmhouse, set a record of 38,030 pounds of milk.

Another unique practice on Queen-Acres is that all the animals are halter broken. "All the animals can lead," said Rebecca Lippy, "Even the vet laughs, but we though this was really common, until someone brought a new group of cows in." The new cows were strangers to the halter, and had other ideas about wearing one. "They all know what a halter is, that way when you bring a cow into the parlor for the first time you can lead her in," Rebecca said.

Marketing Tops Agenda

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Marketing and retention were the main topics recently discussed at the monthly field staff meeting held on Oct. 23, at the Penn State Days Inn in State College.

A marketing tour was recently completed in Lancaster County, Maryland and Franklin County, with a lot of progress being made and potential for a lot of follow up calls in the future.

The dairymen recently visited were provided an explanation of the importance of receiving services from a DHIA cooperative that maintains the highest standards of the industry with 83 percent useable records from USDA.

This is important, in the fact that a dairyman could miss out on having a PTA on one or several animals in the herd if they are not completely identified.

Along with this excellent record, Pa. DHIA technicians continue to offer completion of calf books each month and tag calves which surely is of great importance to each individual member of Pa. DHIA.

It was also reported at the meeting that Pa. DHIA continues to test 24 percent of cows for the milk urea nitrogen option.

This is extremely important at this time of year because there are new forages being put in storage. Milk urea nitrogen testing is an excellent way for a dairyman to monitor his ration with the assistance of his nutritionist, veterinarian, feed consultant or county agent.

Dairymen are urged to sign-up on their next test simply by asking their Pa. DHIA technician to place them on the MUN option.

Testing is simple because MUN is analyzed from the same sample that tests fat, protein and somatic cell count. There is no need for double sampling, which saves time and money. This also helps in the outstanding turn-around of finished reports being mailed to the dairymen.

Dean Amick, director of field operations, presented the schedule of district meetings to the field staff and completed the meeting with plans to hold several record workshops this upcoming year.

Pa. DHIA continues to service herds in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio, West Virginia and Missouri. Please feel free to call 1-800-344-8378 if we can assist with your dairy record management system.

Burris Elected To Top Post

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pa. DHIA has the distinct privilege of having Dixie Burris, director of laboratory services and membership development, elected president of the North American Laboratory Association.

This election was one of several activities that took place at the recent fall leadership conference held in Las Vegas, Nevada on Sept. 21-26.

Currently, Dixie's job duties include managing the lab in State College and handling membership development responsibilities.

Prior to these commitments she had served as customer services, quality assurance and auditing supervisor and held the position of wage payroll personnel and human development for Penn State University's College of Agriculture.

Burris is involved in a number of professional organizations. She serves on the Pennsylvania Dairy Cattlemen's Association board, Pennsylvania Cooperative Council, ASAE, as a Pennsylvania State Agricultural Council delegate and past Bellefonte School District board director.

Community activities, both past and present, include being part of the Bellefonte High School Strategic Planning Committee, a United Way representative for the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, involvement with Bellefonte soccer, the Bellefonte Drugs and Alcohol Awareness group, and a member of the Presbyterian Church of Milesburg.

Dixie's more recent educational endeavors include a business management certificate in real estate coursework and health administration degree classes.

Dixie was instrumental in leading the way for the milk urea nitrogen program as known today. Currently 24 percent of all cows are being tested for the milk urea nitrogen option at Pa. DHIA.

Research and development is at the top of the list with the milk urea nitrogen research program, which is evidenced in the Pa. DHIA MUN records being used by Dr. James Ferguson, New Bolton Center, University of Pennsylvania — his research uses more than one million individual cow records of every breed; by far the most of any DHIA in the nation.

Pa. DHIA uses the Foss 4000 testing machinery which is the only infra-red testing equipment that is approved by AOAC (Association of Official Analytical Chemists), Food and Drug Administration and ICAR (International Recording Committee).

Other accomplishments include developing and formulating an educational manual, "Understanding Your Reports," for members, county extension and allied ag industry customers; developing a color-coded and numerical filing system for our customer accounts: developing pamphlets, brochures and educational aids: and supervising and cultivating the most accurate and efficient data entry in the nation.

Dixie has two grown children, Sam and Janie and two grandchildren, Alexis and Madison.

Pa. DHA is a farmer-owned cooperative that specializes in dairy farm management records in the states of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio, West Virginia and Missouri.

Preservation Board Approves Purchases

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) – The Agricultural Land Preservation Board approved easement purchases for 19 farms encompassing 2,200 acres of prime farmland at its regular meeting, according to state Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr.

Created in 1989, the Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board is responsible for the oversight of the state Farmland Preservation Program. The program allows the state and counties to purchase development rights, referred to as easements, to guarantee that farms will remain as agricultural land.

CAREER PERSPECTIVE: ALTERNATIVES TO VETERINARY SCHOOL

Melissa Edwards, M.S. Candidate in Physiology Department of Poultry Science

When I was in high school, my family and teachers noticed my interest in science, especially animal science. From the beginning, I was encouraged to pursue a career as a veterinarian. I did not realize until late in my undergraduate college career that an interest in animal science does not limit one to the veterinary profession.

The field of veterinary medicine is not the romanticized, high-paying career envisioned by the general public. First, only a limited number of students will be admitted to the 31 veterinary schools in the United States. Those that are admitted do so only after years of difficult undergraduate coursework plus the hands-on animal experience required by most veterinary schools.

Once admitted, veterinary students face a challenging and intense four years of classes, laboratories, rotations, and internships. With debt from tuition bills upward of $100,000 or more, new graduates face a difficult financial situation. Combined debt from both veterinary school and undergraduate tuition, as well as room, board, and other miscellaneous expenses, can be enormous; similar in magnitude to the debt incurred by students of other professional schools, such as medical students. However, new graduates of veterinary schools do not earn salaries comparable to their peers in human medical professions. According to the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA), the average starting salary for 1996 U.S. Veterinary Medical College graduates is $33,688 for those employed in private clinical practice. In contrast, this salary is only slightly higher than the starting salary for many college graduates in the animal sciences, who enter a variety of job opportunities directly from their baccalaureate programs.

New graduates of veterinary school also face a difficult job market. According to AVMA, there will be a surplus of private veterinary practitioners to the year 2000. While the pool of veterinarians is expected to grow by 73%, the demand for small and large animal services is expected to increase by only 54%. Increasingly, new veterinary school graduates will have to give up their dream of a private practice to look instead for jobs in industry and research.

It is important to note, however, that with all of the negative aspects associated with veterinary school, those willing to commit themselves to this physically, intellectually, and financially demanding field can attain a rewarding career. However, we do need to educate young adults interested in pursuing a career in veterinary medicine. As members of the agricultural community, we need to be honest with these students about the hardships they will face while pursuing their degree and building a viable career as a veterinarian. Most importantly, it is critical that young people who are the future of our nation's animal industry realize there are other career options that will enable them to work directly in the animal sciences.

At land grant institutions such as Penn State, undergraduates trained in the animal sciences curriculum can become involved in animal management or technical service positions, sales representatives for pharmaceutical and animal-related support service companies, or as research technicians in both academia and industry, as well as other challenging fields. Students can also pursue graduate degrees in physiology, veterinary science, pathobiology, animal science, genetics, and nutrition. Within these programs, students can specialize in many areas including animal care and management, breeding and genetics, growth and development, nutrition, and reproductive biology. Research and teaching assistantships are available for qualified applicants to graduate programs, which greatly help defray the cost of study. Students completing graduate degrees in these fields have a wide range of opportunities available to them, including teaching, extension positions, and research in both academic institutions and industry.

For more information about the opportunities at Penn State for study in the animal sciences, contact Dr. Erskine Cash, coordinator of the animal sciences curricula, 324 Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-3662.

Risk Management Workshop Set

FREDERICK, Md. — Did you pay high feed prices in 1996? Are you being affected now by low milk prices? Do you know your feed costs for this winter?

Feed costs and milk prices have more impact on a farm's profitability than any other factor. Learning to manage the risks associated with these will benefit any dairy producer.

A Rick Management Using Marketing Tools workshop is scheduled for Dec. 8, from 10:30 a.m. until noon at the Frederick County Extension Office. This is a kickoff program for a new program where dairy products will begin using futures contracts, forward pricing, options, and other marketing tools to guarantee profitability in their farming operations.

As a result of this meeting, small groups of dairymen with similar goals will be formed and work together on developing marketing and buying strategies. Participants will begin using "paper trades" to learn the techniques that they will implement on their farms to improve profitability.

There is no registration fee. The Frederick County Extension office is located just off Rosemont Avenue at 330 Montevue Lane, Frederick.

Home Health Care Helps Rural Residents Recuperate

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Phyllis Green would scoff at being compared to an angel.

But to many recuperating and elderly rural residents of the Gettysburg and Emmitsburg, Maryland, area, Phyllis brings to them a priceless gift — the ability to remain, during a difficult time of their lives, in the comfort and familiarity of their own homes.

"This is the best job in the world," says Phyllis, who brings her patients not only physical care, but a warm smile and caring friendship. A registered nurse and Adams County farmer's wife, she was drawn years ago toward the field of serving the sick and injured in a setting other than a care facility.

Phyllis grew up on the Jim and Lorraine Wivell family's dairy farm in northern Frederick County, one of 13 children. She earned her nursing degree at the University of Maryland, seeking out classes in home care nursing when it was not a particularly popular study field. She and Bob Green married and settled in on his family's farm in rural southern Adams County, where they continue to produce field crops and operate a logging and saw mill business. As a young bride, Phyllis began working with the Visiting Nurse Association.

Phyllis gave up her full-time nursing career while their two sons and one daughter were small. In 1985, she returned to home health care, a field that has burgeoned in recent years as insurance and hospital policies have released patients after increasingly-shorter stays. And, increasingly, Medicare-subsidized home health nursing care is filling the gap between hospitals and healing for homebound patients.

November is Home Health Care month, a salute to a profession that has changed as dramatically in the last decade as it has grown in need.

For those dedicated nurses who travel the rural roads, bringing help and assurance to sick and elderly patients and their families, the job is not just a job, but an emotional commitment. They deal with families under great stress, struggling with upheavals and major lifestyle changes. Sometimes, Phyllis helps patients to die. She has, on occasion, been called in the middle of the night to help ease the last moments of a dying patient and comfort their loved ones through the ordeal.

But, more importantly, Phyllis Green and others like her, help people to live — and to live with dignity and greater comfort in their own homes.

"I laugh a lot . . . I cry a lot . . . I pray a lot," Phyllis Green says with a gentle smile. She credits her husband, co-workers, and her faith as being sources of strength at those times when — despite the fact that she is just doing her job — the emotional involvement with a patient and their family becomes personally touching.

"Home health care is now round-the-clock care," explains Phyllis, who periodically takes her turns at the 24-hour and weekend shifts with other nursing professionals on the staff of Home Call, headquartered locally in Frederick, Maryland. "And it's gotten very high-tech."

"In 1974, when I started, we mostly gave baths, and occasionally inserted a catheter for a patient. Then patients began being put on oxygen at home. Now, we do IVs (intravenous administration of medications) that aren't even used in certain areas of hospitals and work with transplant patients that are only nine days post-operative."

She notes that home care entails not just high-tech medical procedures, but a wider support system as well. Medicare programs will fund home health care for the first several weeks, for evaluation of the patient and for some ongoing care, so long as the patient is immediately housebound upon release from the hospital. Patients are often seen two or three times a week at first, then weekly as their conditions improve.

By visiting patients several times early in their recovery periods, home health care nurses can quickly spot danger symptoms — infection, pneumonia, blood pressure swings, medication side effects — and intervene with physicians for prompt follow-up care. In addition to visits by the nurse, a home health care aide provides more personal care, helping patients with physical needs like baths, dressing, shaving, eating.

Phyllis' farming background stands her well as she covers a couple hundred miles weekly back and forth across the Mason-Dixon line, visiting her patients scattered through southern Adams and northern Frederick counties. She is especially concerned that farm families, so accustomed to "doing for themselves," be familiar with assistance that is available for health care for the homebound.

"There are such nice people out there," Phyllis says of her patients. "I love going to the farms. Farm people are so accustomed to taking care of their own that they don't often realize what they are eligible for. And a little bit of help often is all that is needed to help them to live in their own homes."

One of her regular patients for some time has been Ray Seiss, an 80-year-old former dairy and crops farmer from Creagerstown. Last December, Ray was driving his tractor on the road that passes by the farm, when the tractor was struck by a truck. His wife, Carmen, following behind, watched in horror as the crash tossed him straight up in the air, then onto the paved road, where he landed on the side of his head.

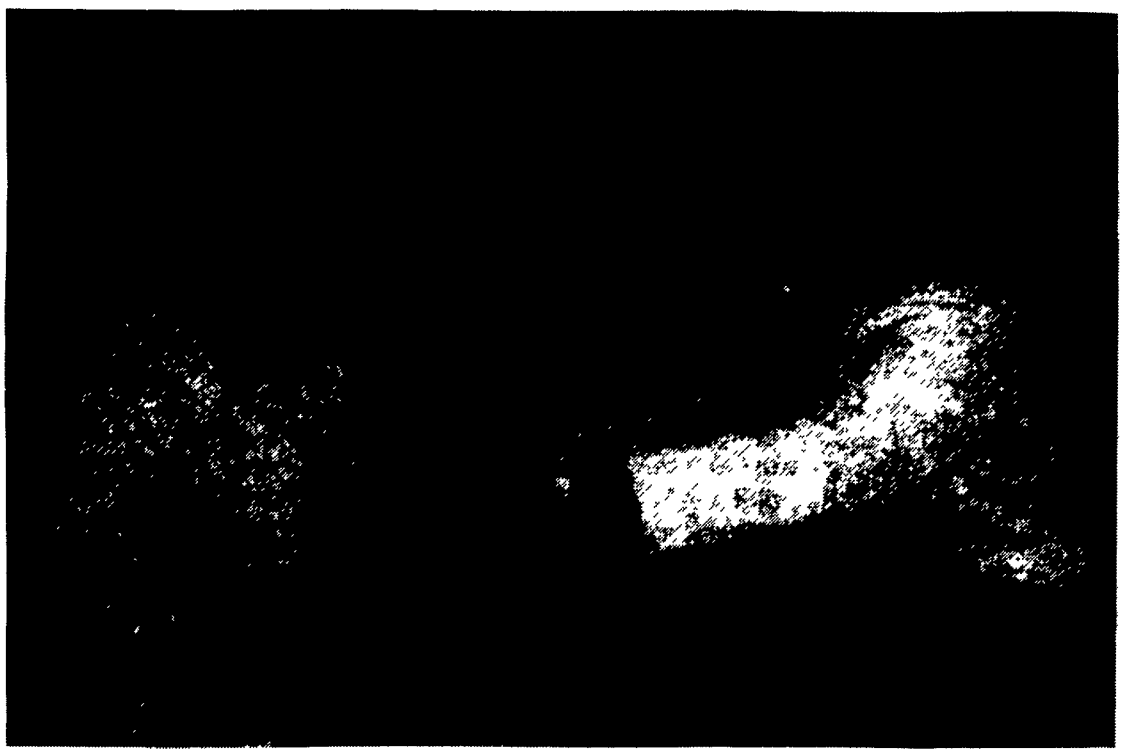
For three weeks, Ray was hospitalized in a shock trauma unit. From there, he spent two months in rehabilitation care, and then moved to an area nursing care facility. Among his numerous injuries, Ray has lost most of his vision.

"I wanted to bring him home," Carmen explained. "The children said they would help me."

The couple has six children, four of them living nearby. With the help and guidance of Phyllis and her co-workers, Carmen has mastered changing aspects of Ray's care, like monitoring his medications and making adaptations to his diet. Carmen also credits Phyllis with teaching her numerous signs to watch for any changes to her husband's health condition. Aides who visit regularly further help with his personal needs.

"Mom couldn't do it all by herself," says Louise Carter, their youngest daughter.

"It has completely changed our life," quietly adds Carmen. "I hope that one of these days, things will improve. If it weren't for the home health care, I'd have to hire a private nurse."



Phyllis Green checks Ray Seiss' blood pressure, part of the patient care administered by home health nurses.

The use of home health care has enabled Ray Seiss to return to his home and family after a life-threatening tractor accident nearly one year ago. With the former dairy farmer are his wife Carmen, daughter Louise, and her children Ashley and Austin Carter.

When another Frederick County retired dairy farmer was released from the hospital more than a year ago, Phyllis elected to remain professionally uninvolved despite her personal interest in the patient.

Her father, Jim Wivell, of Walkersville, underwent a physical in September 1996, as a precursor to planned shoulder surgery. The shoulder surgery was abandoned when a major heart problem was discovered during the routine examination.

After he returned home following valve replacement and triple-bypass open-heart surgery at York Hospital, one of Wivell's first visitors was Phyllis' Home Call co-worker and friend, Jane Zimmerman. When Jane began working with Home Care, she trained under Phyllis; their patient territories are adjoining.

"I have a sister who is also a nurse, but we wanted someone else who would be at the house regularly," Phyllis explains of why the family utilized home-health care assistance. With the metal heart valve that Wivell had implanted, he needed to have blood drawn and checked regularly. He also needed to become familiar with medications prescribed for keeping his blood thinned, as well as to have several surgery incisions checked until they were completely healed.

"It was great peace of mind for me to have a professional like Jane," says Lorraine Wivell, Phyllis' mother. The Wivells' home is a half-mile back a farm lane and Lorraine was especially concerned about their distance from help, should an emergency have arisen. When Wivell developed an infection in one of his leg incisions, it was Jane who promptly made arrangements to get the necessary medication.

Jane, like Phyllis, grew up on her family's dairying operation, and has returned to a home on Trego and Shirley Zimmerman's farm at Walkersville, in order to be close to her nursing job. She felt called to the health profession at an early age, and was a teen-ager when she helped care for her grandfather during his losing battle with cancer. One of the reasons she chose home health care is the greater opportunity offered for working with and teaching patients.

"There is usually not a lot of time for teaching in a hospital situation. A lot of times, patients are discharged so quickly that they don't have time to learn all the things they should know about their care. Or, they may be too exhausted to deal with it," she relates.

"Heart surgery, for instance, is an emotional thing," Jane acknowledges. "Patients experience a lot of fears. And they usually have to deal with some lifestyle changes. Family plays a large role in what we do. Probably more than half our time is spent teaching and educating patients and their families."

"Sometimes you must be very creative," she admits, of the daily

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Home Health Care

Home health care can often be an emotional job for nurses like Phyllis Green. On pleasant days, she may pause for lunch and paperwork catchup at this peaceful, tiny roadside park in her rural patient care territory.

challenges of dealing with many different sorts of patients.

Jim Wivell has recovered well from his open heart surgery. In fact, in just weeks after returning home, he was back outside helping with some of the lighter chores on the family's dairy operation, now operated by their youngest son, Jeff, and his family. Jim continues to help with the farm chores every day, and among other jobs, raises the baby calves.

For Phyllis, home health care for her father was reassurance of extended, professional care during his critical early recovering period, as well as the emotional comfort and assistance it offered to her mother. Having experienced the receiving — as well as the giving — side of home health care has only strengthened her devotion to the profession.

"I just really like it, except for the paperwork," she says of the growing volume of forms and reports the health care industry demands. And, while she sometimes pauses during the day, perhaps with a light lunch she packs along in her car, to complete the never-ending paper demands, that part of the job often goes home to be tackled after work hours.

One favorite spot where Phyllis may pause for a few minutes to catch up on paperwork is at a tiny roadside stop near Emmitsburg, where a picturesque covered bridge crosses a small stream. and, occasionally, when Phyllis really needs an emotional uplift after a difficult visit, she may stop at the Shrine in the Grotto at Mount Saint Mary's near Emmitsburg and climb the tower there that looks out over the peaceful farming valley.

Somehow, the Shrine seems a most appropriate setting for an angel of mercy to seek out for a mental and emotional boost, before continuing on her mission of bringing comfort, care and the gift of living in one's own home.

Give Thanks Without Gaining Weight

Here come the holidays — sprinkled with our family, friends, fun times and, of course, good foods to eat! It seems for many that the holiday season brings not only many joys, but many unwanted pounds.

Weight control experts believe that there are several reasons for the weight gain during the holidays. First the overabundance of foods can make even the most careful person tempted to try new tastes. Hosts usually try to impress their guests with the best of food and drink. However, the "best" may be high in fat or calories or both.

Another reason for weight gain is that there is a human tendency to be less physically active in colder weather. We are more likely to participate in sedentary activities, like watching the television, when it becomes cold outside.

A third cause is the common misperception that since the holiday season lasts from Halloween until Valentine's Day, we can give ourselves a three-month permission to consume vast quantities of food and drink. Overeating at one meal or party will not cause a significant weight gain, but if the habit is allowed to continue for an extended period of time, extra pounds will appear.

There are several strategies that will help you manage your eating habits and thus, your weight during the holiday season. If you are a guest consider the following suggestions.

- Eat before you go to a party so that you don't arrive too hungry. This doesn't mean you should eat a complete meal, but plan a small snack such as a bowl of soup, which will curb the appetite.
- Plan what you will eat and drink. It is much easier to make smart choices when we are not tempted by all the sights and smells of food.
- Offer to bring a fruit platter or tray of vegetables so there will be something low calorie for you to munch on.
- Choose the one or two favorite items that you only have at holiday time and allow yourself to include these treats at parties. Then avoid or only sample the other foods that are not as special to you.
- Try to be the last person through the buffet line. You will be faced with fewer choices and may not be confronted with too many temptations.
- Focus on the reason for the celebration — to talk to friends, meet new people and share the warm spirit of the holiday. Make socializing, not eating the highlight of the party.
- Ask for low calorie, low alcohol beverages and always keep a glass in your hand. This will prevent well meaning hosts from continually asking you if you need something. Remember that alcohol can increase your caloric intake and lower your resistance to foods.

If you are hosting the party, you have control over the menu and can include low calorie selections. The temptation to overeat comes while preparing the foods or dealing with leftovers. Try these suggestions when you are the host.

- Set aside a small portion for tasting the dish and limit yourself to this amount.
- Drink plenty of water or low calorie beverage to give you a feeling of fullness.
- Buy some disposable aluminum pans and custom-make your own TV dinners to eat later. Seal them with plastic wrap and then aluminum foil, label and date them before placing them in the freezer.
- Package your leftovers and give them to your guests.
- Package any nibbles, such as chips and snack foods, into small sandwich bags. Limit yourself to one bag a day.
- Mix leftover nuts with low-fat popcorn for a snack; the popcorn will help "dilute" the high calorie nuts.

Remember to stay physically active during the holidays.

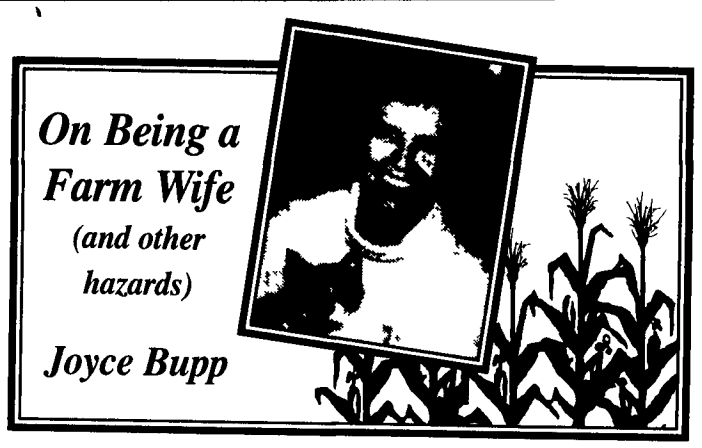
#16T CHERRY STONER



No, don't do it.

Don't sit that turkey out on the kitchen sink to thaw this week. If your holiday bird is a frozen stiff one lounging away in icy storage, unearth him — a few days ahead of his date with the oven — and safely defrost him in the refrigerator.

No, don't do it.

Don't stuff that carefully thawed bird with pounds of stuffing mix — tossed with eggs and maybe some milk — into his inner self and park him somewhere on the counter until it's time to tuck him into a low-temperature oven to slowly roast. Fix the stuffing, chill it, cook it separate or if you must stuff the bird, pack it loosely so heat can get to it adequately.

No, don't do it.

Don't let those cream pies sit out on the counter overnight in the warm where bacteria-type bugs can get to reproducing by the oodles and join you at your big feast. They'll have more fun in the long run than you will.

Or, to borrow a phrase . . . just say "No" to careless food handling.

There are probably few of us around who haven't — knowingly or not — at some point in our lives battled some sort of food poisoning. Our family once came down with a bout of it after a big holiday dinner years ago, all four of us falling prey to the malady within an hour or so of each other. It was almost funny. Almost.

Even worse and longer-lasting was a water-borne bug I picked up years ago at a local eating place after flooding had apparently contaminated the water supply. In the midst of that miserable malady, I actually wondered who was going to raise our two little kids because I was afraid it wouldn't be me.

So we take potential food mishandling very seriously in this household.

Those firsts Thanksgiving celebrators were no doubt just grateful to have something to eat. Bad food was not likely an issue at that particular event, after months of hunger had been suffered. But those Thanksgiving feasters pretty much knew from whence their menu components had originated and had a hand in readying them from start to finish.

How many of us today can say the same thing?

Fact is, we have so much bounty, from so many different sources, handled through umpteen different routes and levels from production to distribution to dining table that it would be well-nigh impossible to track every last thing we put out on our Thanksgiving day tables. Or every other day tables.

While there are almost endless regulatory and inspection requirements for our domestic food supply, our growing array and variety of available foods are increasingly sourced from around the world, produced under conditions over which we may have little or no regulatory control. Plus, the more complicated and distant the food-chain develops from production to consumption, the greater the opportunity for error, especially in fresh and perishables that aren't dried, heat or pressure packaged or otherwise processed.

And even the most stringent regulations anywhere can't eliminate the human factor of carelessness or mishandling or simple inexperience. Some of us were fortunate enough to have moms, home-ec and health teachers, 4-H leaders, etc., who drilled into our sometimes-unwilling brains horror stories about improper handling of food. Some of didn't. Sometimes we just get careless and in a hurry. And, as we depend more and more on ready-to-eat foodstuffs, the reality is that we have no control over where it has been and how it has been stored, prepared or handled.

As we pause this week to stuff a turkey and then ourselves until we are miserable, let's all be especially careful that the miserable part happens only because our feast was so very good, not because it was bad.

And let's give special gratitude that our food concerns are because we have so much and such a variety to eat — not because we are hungry.

To you and your family, a wonderful Thanksgiving Day!

Cooking 1st Contest

Does Your Holiday Turkey Tradition Have The Right "Stuff"?

Holidays stuffed with tradition, such as Thanksgiving, can give families a chance to share not only time with one another, but also recipes. Consider sharing some of the tasty ingredients you put in your holiday stuffing by participating in a nationwide contest.

(NAPS)—You may want to cook up a little family spirit by participating in a contest that celebrates the tradition of a holiday meal.

To encourage more people to personalize their holiday cooking, one major food distributor sponsors a national "Make Your Own Holiday Tradition" contest. Just name the two ingredients (besides butter, water or chicken broth) you stuff in your stuffing to make it your own.

One grand prize winner will receive round-trip airfare anywhere in the continental United States for up to four family members.

The company, Pepperidge Farm, will also throw in all the fixings for a traditional family feast. The entry deadline is Nov. 30, 1997. The entry must include your name, address and daytime telephone number.

According to Edie Anderson, Pepperidge Farm vice president, homemade stuffing is the place where many younger cooks begin their own traditions.

"Stuffing is a crowd pleaser," Anderson said. "Cooks feel comfortable with stuffing because it's easy to prepare and something they can enhance with their own simple ingredients."

The company, established in 1937, is a leader in making various types of bread and cookies.

Mail your contest entry to: Pepperidge Farm Stuffing Contest, P.O. Box 1130, Boston, MA 02117.

Turkey Talk—The Safe Way

TURKEY TALK – THE SAFE WAY

Since Thursday is Thanksgiving, it's appropriate to talk about turkey safety.

Becoming ill from bacterial contaminated food is not difficult to imagine. We've heard about outbreaks in the past. So why not take a few steps this year to ensure your friends and family have a safe holiday?

The first step towards turkey safety is to defrost your bird in the refrigerator-NOT on the counter top. Thawing a turkey (or any other food item) on the counter overnight is dangerous because the outer portions will thaw before the interior, causing harmful bacterial growth on the surface.

Instead, thaw the turkey in its original wrapper in the refrigerator. Use a pan to catch the drippings to prevent them from contaminating ready-to-eat items such as lettuce, fruits, and vegetables that are eaten raw. you must allow at least three hours of refrigerator thawing time per pound of bird.

If you need to speed up defrost time, turkeys 12 pounds and under may be thawed by submerging the frozen wrapped turkey in cold water (less than 40 degrees F). Change the water every half hour to keep it cold.

When preparing the turkey, wash the inside and outside of the turkey in cold water and drain well. Remember to remove the bag of giblets from inside the bird.

If you prefer stuffing which has been cooked inside the bird, stuff right before roasting. (Better yet, bake the stuffing separately from the bird.) Stuffing the turkey in advance may seem like a time saving idea, but you're only asking for trouble. Harmful bacteria can multiply to dangerous levels in an uncooked, stuffed bird.

However, to save time, you can prepare the dry stuffing ingredients such as bread, herbs, and seasonings the day before and store them in a tightly covered container at room temperature. Perishable ingredients such as butter, cooked onions and celery, broth, and mushrooms must be refrigerated. Combine the ingredients just prior to stuffing the bird.

Place the turkey breast-side up in a shallow roasting pan. Insert a meat thermometer in the inner thigh and cover loosely with aluminum foil. Place the bird in a preheated oven at 325 degrees F.

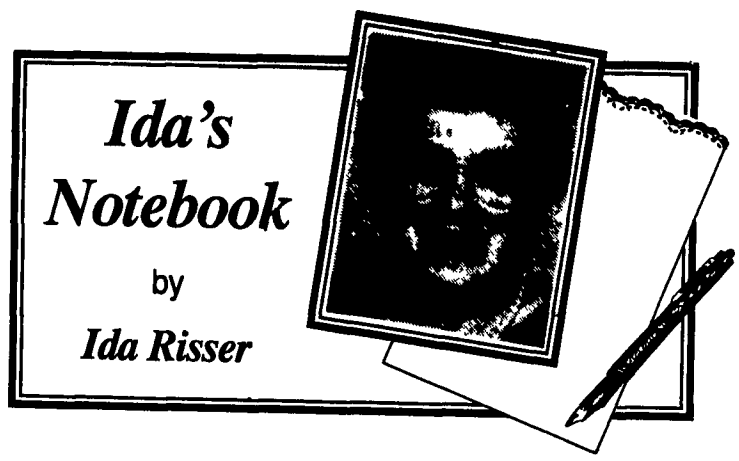
Wash hands, sinks, counters, utensils and platter thoroughly with soap and hot water before and after working with the bird. Use a sanitizing solution to disinfect the areas that came in contact with the turkey. To make a sanitizing solution, mix one tablespoon of bleach to one gallon lf lukewarm water. It is important to use lukewarm water-not hot or cold-since temperature affects the action of the bleach.

USDA highly recommends use a a meat thermometer to determine doneness. A thermometer should be used even if a "pop-ups" one already comes in the bird because the reliabiltiy of these plastic thermometers depends on where they are placed in the product. Typically they're set off-center in one side of the breast. The optimum location for monitoring the internal temperature of a turkey is in the inner thigh area near the breast but not touching the bone. Some studies also indicate that turkeys weighing 11 pounds or more may be more prone to problems with "pop-ups"than smaller ones.

A whole turkey is done when the temperature reaches 180 degrees F in the inner thigh. A breast is done at 170 degrees F. The juices should run clear. Stuffing temperature should reach at least 165 degrees F.

After dinner, remove the stuffing and carve leftovers from the bone. Refrigerate all leftovers promptly. Do not allow your turkey or other Thanksgiving trimmings to sit out on the table all day for people to nibble on. Remember, you only have 2 hours from the time you take the bird from the oven to put it in storage.

For additional information on cooking your holiday turkey, call USDA'S Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-800-535-4555.



By this time I expect that most people have their Thanksgiving plans in place. We expect to have our big meal in our son's home with 17 people at the table. I offered to make the turkey but instead I am to bring the vegetables. Considering that I have two freezers full, that should not be a difficult job. We are always happy to see family members again around a full table.

Our minister recently gave a talk entitled "The Joy of Eating." He explained that there is more to eating than meets the eye. There is the joy of sharing a meal with someone who otherwise would eat alone. We can make new friends by eating with neighbors. Not only are our bodies renewed but our spirits too by partaking of food with others.

My husband is quite interested in nut trees. Not only black walnuts but also chestnut and hickory too. The other week he saw an advertisement of nut trees for sale in Berks County. So, we had to drive there and buy some.

We discovered that the seller not only had trees for sale but also had two greenhouses. One had large salvia plants blooming and the other had Thanksgiving items stored there. We saw Indian corn, pumpkins, squash and red popcorn. They were very generous and shared shellbarks, chestnuts, and persimmons with us.

For a long time I will have a reminder of their generosity as they gave a huge fern and a hanging basket of Wandering Jew vines. They are a beautiful shade of maroon.

This fall I too was generous and shared some of my many bulbs. A lady came here and got bags of four kinds of lilies, dahlias, and gladiolas. My husband tells me that now I will only have half as many to plant next year.

Delicious Twist To Traditional Thanksgiving Dinner

Are you ever tempted to sever tradition and break away from serving Thanksgiving dishes passed down through the family?

Maybe grandma's pumpkin pie can't be beat and Aunt Mary's stuffing is heavenly. But how will you ever know there isn't a better recipe out there if you don't try it.

Today's recipes offer the perfect transition. They are traditional enough to satisfy those who prefer the turkey, potato, cranberry, stuffing, and pumpkin pie menu; yet different enough to offer a slightly different texture or flavor than the usual.

Happy Thanksgiving!

ROASTED TURKEY WITH LEMON ROSEMARY BUTTER

Place turkey on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast turkey for about 3 to 3½ hours until thermometer registers 180 degrees. To check temperature, insert thermometer into thickest part of thigh. PUMPKIN CUSTARD

2 cups pumpkin, mashed
1 cup milk
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves

Mix together. pour into crust. Bake one hour at 350 degrees. Cool. Refrigerate.

My grandmother, Anna Hillborn-Stewart, taught me the best way to cook pumpkin. Select a medium-size sugar pumpkin for best flavor and texture. Cut in half. Scoop out seeds and insides.

Place face down on greased cookie sheet, poke with fork to let steam escape. Bake until soft, ½ -10 minutes depending on wall thickness. Let cool.

Scoop off outer skin, mash with potato masher or electric mixer. A medium pumpkin yields about 2 cups, which is perfect for most recipes. Freezes well. Place Ziplock small freezer bag in widemouth pint jar. Fill with mashed pumpkin. Seal with all air expelled from bag. Freeze—will keep all winter—and there's exactly 2 cups in each bag.

The brown sugar makes a nice crust on the pie. Make a small dip in the center with butter knife after removing from oven to let steam escape or custard will turn watery. Great Pie!

All over the country cooks are planning holiday menus and many will include turkey. Registered dietitian Brenda Ponichtera says "cook a big one" because the possibilities for using leftover turkey are endless and delicious. Ponichtera, author, of "Quick & Healthy Recipes and Ideas," and Quick & Healthy Volume II (ScaleDown Publishing, Inc., 1519 Hermits Way, The Dalles, OR 97058, $16.95 each, combbound) offers the following great suggestions and healthy, low-fat sandwich recipes.

• Pita Bread Pockets — Mix diced turkey with chopped celery or cucumbers and reduced fat dressing and stuff into the pita bread. Or mix the turkey with shredded cabbage seasoned with rice vinegar for an Oriental flavor.

• Turkey Cranwich — Layer sliced turkey, light cream cheese, cranberry sauce and sprouts on bread.

• Wrap Ups — Using the new flavored tortilla wraps, layer thinly turkey with sliced cheeses, tomatoes, relishes, chutneys, cranberry sauce, flavored cream cheeses, chopped lettuce, and or sprouts. Wrap up.

• Turkey BBQ — Top sliced turkey with a small amount of barbecue sauce on a kaiser roll.

TURKEY REUBEN SANDWICH

8 slices rye bread
4 ounces cooked turkey slices
1 cup sauerkraut, rinsed well and drained
4 ounces sliced low-fat Swiss cheese

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Toast bread. On each of 4 slices, place 1 ounce turkey, ¼ cup sauerkraut, and 1 ounce Swiss cheese. Top with remaining slices of bread. Wrap in aluminum foil and bake for 10 minutes or until thoroughly heated and cheese is melted.

Microwave Expert Tackles Top Ten Cooking Questions

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Microwave ovens have become as common in the American home as refrigerators, dishwashers and the t.v. remote control. Almost as common as the appliance are consumer questions about microwave cooking, most of which can't be answered off the cuff.

Swamy Anantheswaran, associate professor of food science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, who has done research on microwave technology, gives these answers to his top ten most common microwave cooking questions.

• Why does my coffee taste bad and show an oily film when I reheat it? "Coffee and tea are very sensitive to the time and temperature used to reheat it," Anantheswaran says. "Because microwaves may heat unevenly, coffee may heat at different rates, which burns some elements of the coffee, leading to off-flavors. The film comes from oils within the coffee or tea which are responsible for its flavor."

• Why do buns and breads turn soft and chewy when heating a hot dog or a sandwich? "The hot dog or lunch meat in a sandwich releases moisture very rapidly as it's cooked," Anantheswaran says. "The moisture has to go somewhere, and it becomes absorbed by the bread. Overheating and rapid heating also will make bread chewy."

• Do meals cooked in a microwave cool faster than those cooked conventionally? Anantheswaran says the reverse is true. "Microwaves cook from the inside out, so the heat on the outside is dissipating and the food seems cooler, but in reality it is hotter on the inside," he explains. "The principle is seen easily by heating a jelly doughnut — the outside is relatively cool, whereas the filling may be scalding hot."

• Why does spaghetti or other pasta seem to take longer to reheat? Anantheswaran says microwave ovens heat more efficiently when foods have a large surface area, so spread the food out on the plate and avoid cooking directly in containers. Sauces are high in salt, which absorbs microwaves, thus causing the sauce to overcook before the pasta is heated. "The trick to reheating leftovers is to decrease power and add a little moisture," says Anantheswaran. "Everyone likes to cook everything on high. What's an extra 60 seconds if the food is cooked more evenly? Don't race your oven. It's as bad for the food as racing a car is for the engine."

• Why does my popcorn burn, and why does the "popcorn" button leave so many kernels unpopped? Anantheswaran says microwave popcorn pops differently because of such variable factors as brand of popcorn, brand of oven, quality of the kernels, quality of the bag, age of the product and whether the product is salted.

Joy Daniel, senior manager of product development for Sharp Electronics Corp., explains that popcorn buttons differ in two ways. A "timed" popcorn button is designed to cook for a pre-set time based on the average cooking time for consumer popcorn brands. A "sensor" popcorn button will shut the oven off as soon as it senses a certain level of humidity indicating the popcorn is fully popped.

"Microwave popcorn may have more unpopped kernels because the manufacturers are less concerned with popping all the kernels than with providing the indicated quantity," Daniel says. "The manufacturers include more kernels to make sure the corn pops to a full bag every time."

• What is the best covering for food? Daniel says paper towels are best for breads, rolls and muffins. Wax paper works best for vegetables. Lids are best for large quantities of dense foods.

• Why do microwaves heat unevenly? "Microwaves are absorbed from the outside in," Anantheswaran says. "That heat is absorbed differently depending on the size, shape and composition of the food." He says microwave ovens get the most even heating with small cylindrical or spherical foods, such as hot dogs or potatoes. Rectangular foods, such as packaged dinners, may heat less evenly because the microwaves are hitting the top and the sides, causing the corners to overcook.

• What role does the glass platform play in the cooking process? Removable glass trays and turntables are easy to clean. Carousel platforms allow more even heating as the food rotates within the oven. They also lift the food to allow microwaves to penetrate from below, Daniel explains.

• Why does my microwave oven cook meats to a tougher consistency? "In most cases meat loses tenderness in a microwave from being cooked too rapidly," Anantheswaran says. "Cooking is a series of chemical reactions, and we have to allow time for each reaction to be completed. I usually cook meat on 50 percent power."

He doesn't remember the name or any other ingredients it might have contained, but the mixture was made in a deep gray graniteware lidded pot.

QUESTION — Mary Dengler, Middletown, Ohio, would like a recipe for 10-grain bread that tastes similar to that made by Roscoe Village Bakery in Coshocton, Ohio.

QUESTION — Grace Rumer, Abington, is looking for a recipe for individual crumb buns with cheese pockets. Her husband ate some, which he said were delicious, on the Ocean City Boardwalk in New Jersey.

QUESTION — Stephanie Huger, Meyerstown, is looking for a recipe for pumpkin strudel with poppy seeds and sour cream or cream cheese. Her grandmother from Hungary made it, but Stephanie lost the recipe.

ANSWER — I.A. Rich Sr. of Maryland wanted to know where to find a "Little Britain Cook Book." Thanks to Mirian DeLong of Quarryville, for writing the books can be purchased from Esther Black, 105 Little Britain Church Rd., Peach Bottom, PA 17563.

ANSWER — Cindy Sides, Ellicott City, Md., wrote that a recipe for honey mustard pretzels was previously printed in this section. Thanks to R. Leinbach, East Earl, for sending the following recipe.

Honey Mustard Sauce

Combine 1 cup warm honey with ¼ cup mustard or adjust taste and mix well.

Let cool to room temperature.

This is good on pretzels or as a dipping sauce for chicken nuggets or try adding it to steamed green beans. You can use plain yellow salad mustard or for a different twist, try using a dijon, spicy brown or poupon-style mustard.

ANSWER — Cel Brown of West Chester wanted the recipe for a bread mix like the ones in the store called Daily Bread Company's. Thanks to Janet Spangler, York Springs, for writing that her breadmaker is a West Bend. The recipe booklet has 27 different bread recipes such as cinnamon-raisin oatmeal, rye, 100% whole wheat, sourdough, etc. These basic mixes can be made ahead of time to save time and money.

Measure all dry ingredients for recipe (except yeast). Place in plastic bag and close with a twist tie. Label the bag and the size of loaf it will make. When ready to use, add liquid ingredients to pan as recipe directs. Add the dry mixture and butter or oil with the yeast on top.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted cheese recipes, here are some from Sarah Pine, Altoona.

Cup Cheese

2½ gallons thick sour milk
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoons salt
½ cup water

heat milk to 120 degrees or until it is too hot to hold your finger in it. Drain and allow to stand in cheesecloth bag until the next day. Crumble curds or put them through food processor until fine. Mix soda through cheese and place into a crock or large mixing bowl. Cover with a cloth and allow to stand 3 days at room temperature. Stir each morning and evening. At the end of the third day, the cheese should appear yellow and gummy, and have a sharp odor.

Set crock or bowl containing cheese in a boiler of hot water. Add salt and water, then stir until smooth. Pour into custard cups. When cold, spread on bread.

Mild-Flavored Hard Cheese

Heat 2 gallons milk in a stainless steel kettle to 180 degrees or 190 degrees. If it boils, it will work but cheese may be drier. Remove from heat and add vinegar until it separates (approximately ½ cup).

Pour the cheese into a colander to drain the whey. Once it's drained, add 2½ teaspoons salt to the curds using a fork to stir. While still hot, put the curds into some kind of mold wiht holes at the bottom and sides so that it can drain. (such as the top part of a vegetable blancher). Cut a plastic lid to fit and punch holes for the top. For weight, fill a 5-quart plastic ice cream pail with water. Or you can put a cheesecloth into the colander and gather the curds tightly in the cloth and let set. Let it drip and harden in a cold place overnight. Remove from mold and enjoy.

For variety, add dried, ground jalapeno peppers or cheddar cheese powder, etc., when adding salt.

For cottage cheese, cool curds in whey. Drain through cloth, allowing curds to drip until dry. Place them in a bowl and add salt, enough milk to moisten the curds.

Variation: add parsley flakes and all-purpose seasoning.

Dreaming Of A Country Home?

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N.Y. — The new book, "American Country Building Design," presents 67 of last century's prettiest farmhouses, village homes, and country cottages; 19 barns, carriage houses and outbuildings; 14 landscape plans; and close to 200 elegant woodwork details.

Architect Donald Berg, searched through hundreds of tattered 19th century publications to find the best designs. He reproduced plans and lovely old-time engraved illustrations and wove them with the original designers' descriptions of their work.

Berg expected to present the work of yesterday's architects. Instead, he found that many of the most creative plans were penned by farmers. Country women and their husbands took up designing out of frustration with the plans that city architects were peddling to them. The designs show that over time, country folk and urban architects learned from each other. Together they developed a new style, blending high-fashion filigree and simple folk forms into the beautiful farmsteads and villages that still symbolize American country.

The new, 8-1/2" x 11", 160 page soft-cover book is available at bookstores for $14.95. To order a copy by mail, call Sterling Publishing at 1-800-367-9692.

Go Out On A Limb

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) - It may look like a misprint, but according to a community forestry expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, the most important steps in caring for a young tree start before you buy the tree.

"The crucial part of picking a tree is matching a tree to the spot you've picked out," says Bill Elmendorf, instructor and urban and community forest program coordinator in the School of Forest Resources.

Elmendorf suggests consumers think carefully about the color, size and branching shape of a tree before choosing a planting site. Then, once a site is chosen, the homeowner should carefully examine the site conditions for:

-- Soil pH.
-- Soil compaction.
-- Presence of sun or shade.
-- Moisture.

"Then you can pick a tree that is tolerant of the conditions and can adapt easily to the site," Elmendorf says. "The idea is to prevent as much care and maintenance as you can before you buy the tree."

When buying the tree, spend as much time as possible checking for damage, disease or quality problems. "Don't buy a tree because it's on sale. Buy the tree that you want from a quality nursery or home center," Elmendorf says.

After the purchase, Elmendorf suggests some do's and don'ts for tree buyers.

•Don't transport the tree unprotected. Cover or wrap the tree in a tarp or plastic sheeting. "If you throw the tree in the back of a pickup and race home at 65 miles per hour, the tree will be damaged by leaf loss, and the wind will dry out the plant," Elmendorf warns.

•Do handle the tree carefully. Trees should never be lifted by the trunk or lifted using chains or ropes. Elmendorf recommends lifting the tree by the root ball.

•Don't hesitate to plant the tree. Elmendorf suggests storing a tree no longer than a week. If the tree must be stored, cover the root ball in mulch and keep it moist.

•Do prune before planting, but not too much. Cosmetic pruning, such as eliminating crossed branches or damaged limbs is acceptable. "Don't prune away leaves unless absolutely necessary," Elmendorf explains. "Leaves give trees the energy for growing roots."

Digging a hole for the tree may seem the simplest part of the job, but Elmendorf warns that attention must be paid to the dirty work. "What consumers have to understand is you can't plant a $100 tree in a $1 hole," Elmendorf says.

In general, foresters recommend trees be planted in wide holes, at least two to three times the width of the root ball. The top of the root ball should be level with the existing terrain. The root ball should rest on firm soil, and in most cases original soils can be used to fill in the hole.

"If the soil is really poor or full of rubble, you can fill the hole with high quality top soil," Elmendorf says.

Regina And Lisa Talk About Thanksgiving Day

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

REINHOLDS (Lancaster Co.) — Like children in schools across the United States, Lisa and Regina Weaver have been studying about the first Thanksgiving Day.

Five-year-old Lisa made an Indian band with a feather in remembrance of the Indians who celebrated the first Thanksgiving with the early settlers. Her class is participating in a play in which Lisa will wear a bonnet like the Pilgrim woman did.

Nine-year-old Regina said that the whole school will celebrate Thanksgiving Day next Wednesday when they will go to a local firehall and are served Thanksgiving dinner. Then each class at Gehman's Mennonite School will participate in a talent show.

According to "World Book Encylopedia," one of the first Thanksgiving observances in America was entirely religious and did not involve feasting. On Dec. 4, 1619, 39 English settlers arrived at Berkeley Plantation, on the James River near what is now Charles City, Va. The group's charter required the the day of arrival be observed yearly as a day of thanksgiving to God.

But most students are more familiar with the first New England Thanksgiving, which was celebrated less than a year after the Plymouth colonists had settled in the new land. Almost half the colonists who settled in Massachusetts had died from during the vicious winter weather.

Lisa said that her teacher is reading the class a story about an Indian boy. According to the story, many Indians also died during those months because they had contracted "white men's disease."

Dishes were buried in the ground in the hopes of burying the germs from the disease, Lisa said.

Eventually the winter passed and the awful sickness no longer plagued the settlers and the Indians. The corn harvest brought great rejoicing. Governor William Bradford decreed that a three-day feast be held in 1621.

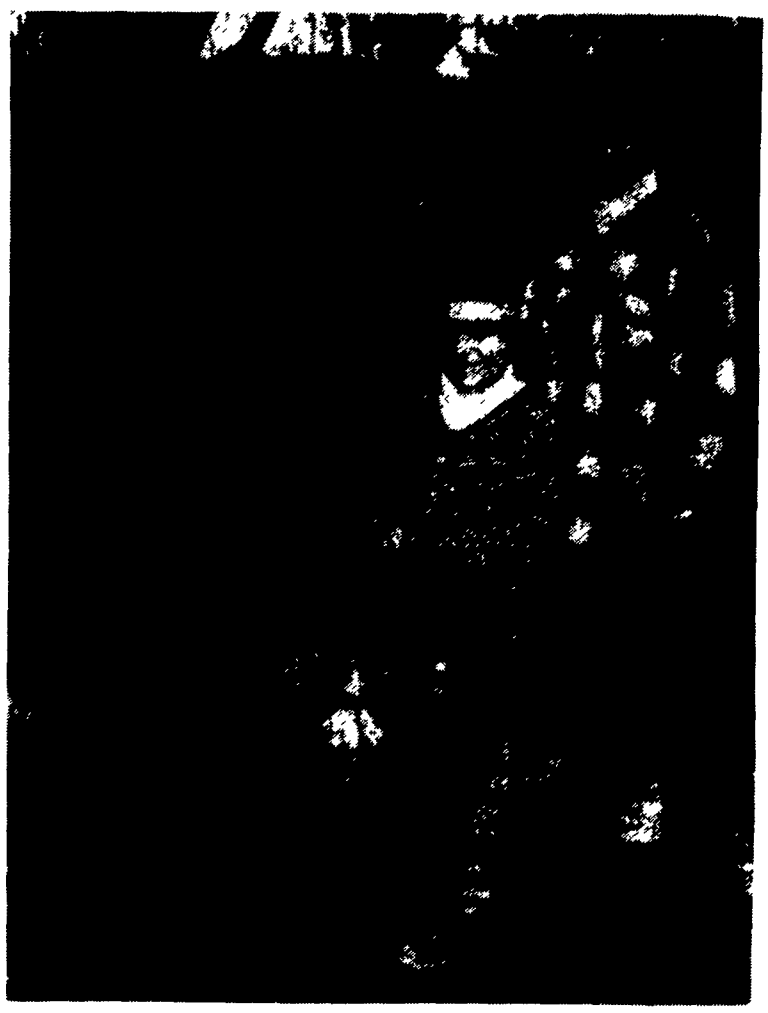
The women of the colony spent many days preparing for the feast. Indians brought wild turkey and venison (deer meat). The men of the colony brought geese, ducks, and fish. It is reported that Indians showed the colonists how to make popped corn.

Although other Thanksgiving celebrations were held by New England and states in other areas, there was no annual national Thanksgiving Day in the United States until President Lincoln proclaimed a Thanksgiving Day in 1855. He stated that Thanksgiving Day should be held on the last Thursday in November "as a day of thanksgiving and praise to our beneficent Father."

Each year afterward, for 75 years, the President of the U.S. formally proclaimed that Thanksgiving Day should be held during the last Thursday in November. In 1939, President Roosevelt set it one week earlier to help business by lengthening the shopping period between Thanksgiving and Christmas. In 1941, Congress finally established the fourth Thursday of November to be a legal holiday in observance of Thanksgiving Day.

Today, Thanksgiving Day is usually a time for aunts, uncles, cousins and grandparents gathering together for a traditional holiday meal of turkey, stuffing, baked corn, cranberry salad, and pumpkin pie.

Lisa and Regina, the children of Keith and JoAnne Weaver, have a larger celebration than most families. They said more than 200 people will gather at a rented facility for an annual family reunion.



After numerous Thanksgiving-related activities at school, Regina, right, and Lisa Weaver are eager to celebrate Thanksgiving Day with family, cousins, aunts, uncles, and grandparents. Lisa wears an Indian band with a feather that she made in school.

"I like mashed potatoes the best," Lisa said.

Her sister prefers the baked corn made by her grandma.

Just like the settlers at the first Thanksgiving Day, the girls are taking time to be thankful.

"I'm thankful for my family," Regina said. "I like to play games and just be together."

"I'm thankful for clothes," Lisa said.

Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Are cranberries a fruit?
The red, tart orbs are definitely a berry, but they are raised more like fish
Confused? Don't be Cranberries grow in bogs in northern parts of the United States and in Canada. Bogs are natural or artificial areas that flood and drain on a regular basis Cranberry farmers have learned how to manipulate the amount of water to get the best yields of this seasonal treat
Cranberry plants are similar to blueberries in some ways. They grow on plants that have woody stems, and they both like acidic, sandy soil Cranberries are also kind of like strawberries Both strawberries and cranberries send out stems along the ground, called runners. The next year, branches grow out from the runners, which bud and produce the tart fruit
But cranberries are all alone when it comes to living in a bog Farmers pump out excess water from the bog when it rains excessively However, when winter is on its way, cranberry growers add water Because the thick water cover doesn't freeze completely, it insulates the plants lying on the bottom of the bog from harsh winter weather. In the springtime, farmers pump the water back out.
Farmers also flood the bogs with about 6 inches of water to make the fall harvest easier. The fruit floats to the top, and mechanical harvesters scoop up the fruit without damaging it Without water, the berries would bruise In fact, water is so important to raising cranberries that only fish growers need more water to farm!

Good Bones For Rover

Giving your dog an occasional "bone" from a box is fine because it helps keep the animal's teeth clean. Real bones are another matter. They can splinter and become lodged in the dog's mouth or intestine. Poultry bones are probably the worst.

No table scraps, please–complete and balanced diets are best for your pets. Table scraps or other snacks can contribute to obesity in animals. Food prepared for humans isn't nutritionally balanced for animals and can cause problems. Pets that are fed table scraps can become picky eaters. As a result, they don't get the nutrients they need.

Fresh water needed–pets need fresh water available on a daily basis. In winter, outdoor pets need to be supplied with water more often than once a day because it freezes quickly.

North Koreans Ply Farm Family With Questions

PEARL SENSENIG
MCC Writer

AKRON (Lancaster Co.) — Their countries do not have diplomatic relations, but that didn't hinder friendship from blossoming in a cow barn.

On October 26, a rainy Sunday afternoon, David and Rhoda King of Cochranville, found themselves with some unusual guests — three North Koreans interested in touring a "modern farm."

The Kings were in the midst of moving and had nearly emptied their house, but they managed to locate some boots and a few broken umbrellas for their visitors. Then they trudged together through the pouring rain and mud to the barn. The Kings' sons, Gerald and Marvin, joined them.

As the cows chewed their cud, the visitors plied their hosts with questions: What's alfalfa? (They were given samples.) What kind of herbicides do you use? (They were presented with labels.) What do you wipe cows' utters with? (just water, was the answer.) The visitors scrawled furiously in their notebooks as their interpreter translated.

North Korea is at nearly the same latitude as Pennsylvania so many of the same crops — corn, barley and potatoes — are grown. However, the visitors noted North Korean yields are lower, and were eager to hear how the King family manages their dairy operation as well as their crops.

Currently North Korea is experiencing a severe food crisis. Causes include a combination of natural disasters and an agricultural system that relies heavily on chemicals and fertilizers — items that are no longer easily available with the disintegration of North Korea's former trade partner, the U.S.S.R.

The North Korean guests were members of the Korean Committee for Solidarity with the World's People, a North Korea organization established to promote good relations between North Koreans and people in other countries. The group consisted of Ri Yong Son, who is an agricultural researcher, Kim Hyong Jun and Tong Kyong Chol.

"I was impressed by their questions. You could tell they were very knowledgeable about farming," noted David King. The tour included a trip to the potato cellar where the North Koreans saw how a series of canals keeps the air warm and moist, preventing spoilage. Then they were off to look at the farm equipment. The North Koreans crawled up on the tractors and inquired about the horsepower.

"I'm just sorry we didn't have more time to hear from them about how farming is done in North Korea," said David King.

After about two hours, the group headed back to the house. "I wish I could have cooked them a meal," sighed Rhoda King.

Instead, the North Koreans joined the Pennsylvania farm family for coffee and tea. As they were seated together around a card table, one American remarked that, although those gathered could be viewed as enemies, today "we are brothers and sisters."

As this statement was translated, the North Koreans rose and grasped their hosts' hands. "That moment touched us all," said Rhoda King. She and David King are members of Kennett Square (Pa.) Mennonite Church.

The North Koreans' October 23 to November 12 U.S. trip, planned by the American Friends Service Committee (AFSC) included visits to educational and agricultural institutions.

In North Korea Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) and AFSC are assisting Sambong farming community and other farms in the vicinity. In mid-October the two agencies collaborated on a material aid shipment to Sambong — MCC supplied some 1,400 blankets and comforters, warm clothing, and 1,800 cans of beef.

MCC has also committed $200,000 U.S. to Sambong to purchase seeds and fertilizers for planting fall vegetables and winter barley, as well as for next year's growing season. Some funds will buy plastic sheeting and spare parts for equipment. Additionally, since April 1996 MCC has sent more broadly targetted food and medical aid worth nearly $2.5 million U.S. to North Korea.

"Humanitarian aid prepares the way for understanding each other," commented Kim Hyong Jun, one of the North Korean visitors.

The Kings would also say spending an afternoon with people from North Korea — one of the world's most politically isolated countries — can also add to understanding between two peoples who rarely have a chance to meet.

Sandwiches—Making Them Nutritious

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — The sandwich was born when the Earl of Sandwich ordered his meat between two pieces of bread so he could eat and play at the same time.

Today, the sandwich has become a nutritional mainstay for many of us, especially in the summer. We stop by McDonald's for an Egg McMuffin on the way to work. At lunch we grab a sandwich either packed from home or purchased at a local deli. Then, because it's too hot, we're too tired, or we're already late for the ball game, we decide sandwiches will work just fine for supper.

How "fine" are sandwiches? Are some sandwiches better for us than others? What can we do to make sandwiches healthier fare?

Sandwiches are neither inherently good nor bad for you. In fact, the ingredient that makes it a sandwich — the bread or bun — is relatively low in fat and a good source of carbohydrates and B vitamins. If whole grain breads or buns are used, it also is a source of fiber. It's the filling and the spread, not the bread or bun, that most effects the nutritional quality of sandwiches.

And, what an effect that can be. In one analysis of popular deli sandwiches, only two types — turkey with mustard and roast beef with mustard — consistently provided less than 30 percent of their calories from fat. Ham, cheese, and veggie sandwiches also were relatively low in fat, provided they didn't include too much ham or cheese and were made with mustard instead of mayo or oil.

Besides the spread used, the filling is the major contributor of fat calories in sandwiches. The more filling into a sandwich, the higher the calories. Some deli shops use only three or four ounces of filling per sandwich, but many boast seven or eight ounces. In comparison, one or two ounces of deli meat is considered a serving for nutrition-labeling purposes.

Just how caloric are deli sandwiches? Among 39 sandwiches evaluated in a recent study, calories ranged from a low of 27 for a six-inch veggie and cheese sub sandwich without mayo or oil, to nearly 1000 for a 13-ounce overstuffed tuna salad sandwich with mayo. Even a regular tuna salad sandwich provided anywhere from 550 to 830 calories, depending on whether it was served without or with mayonnaise. So what can you do when you're in the mood for a deli sandwich, but want to keep it on the healthy side? Here are some tips.

- Ask to hold the mayo, oil, and salt. Instead try low-fat condiments, like mustard, ketchup, or low-fat maho. If you're watching your sodium intake, ask to hold the mustard as well.
- Always ask for the lettuc, tomato, and onion. These fat-free vegetables add vitamins, minerals, and fiber.
- For added fiber, choose whole wheat or dark rye bread.
- When possible, get your sandwich filling from the salad bar. Try stuffing a pita pocket with fresh veggies and low-fat dressing.
- Order one sandwich and extra bread or buns. Split the filling between two or more sandwiches. Share with a friend or take home what you don't eat.

York Farm Women Gather For Annual Convention

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Members of the York County Society of Farm Women paused during the group's annual county convention on November 6 to "take a nap."

Actually, none of the more than 100 attending the convention at Wisehaven Hall actually took a nap. They did, however, participate in an exercise therapy reputed to be the equivalent of a nap as beneficial for relaxation and stress relief.

Leading the "nap that wasn't" part of the program was Marine McGire, occupational therapist at Rest Haven recuperation and nursing center in York, and the featured speaker for the convention's afternoon session. To a background of relaxing music, she led her Farm Women audience through some of the same stretch and exercise techniques she utilizes in her therapy work, demonstarting to them how they can feel better and more relaxed. The simple and non-painful stretching, breathing and stress-reduction fitness exercises do not even require the participants to stand, but rather are performed while seated.

Sharing the speakers portion of the program were York County Dairy Princess Amanda Daugherty and Dairy Maid Heather Crowl, who related their promotional experience and gave presentations on milk and milk products. Musical entertainment was provided by singers Barry and Kelley Henshaw.

The Farm Women enthusiastically demonstrated another form of stress relief — feeling better by helping others — with generous donations of both foodstuffs and financial contributions to several area social service agencies working with families in need. The annual prize-drawing fund raiser generated more than $1,400, which was split into $700 contributions to New Hope Ministries and New Life for Girls. Additionally, members brought non-perishable foodstuffs as part of their admittance to the annual convention, filling several long tables with canned and dry, packaged goods. Recipients of the food contributions were the Bell Family Shelter, Lehman Center for Children, and New Life for Children.

Two candidates for office were elected during the business meeting to fill vacancies left by retiring and resigning officers. Arlene Miller, Loganville, a member of Group 11, was elected to the office of first vice president. She is a past county president and former state director and state chaplain.

Lois Manifold, center, was installed for a two-year term as president of the York County Society of Farm Women. Assisting her will be county officers, from left, Delores "Dolly" Sutton, secretary; Arlene Miller, first vice-president, president Manifold; Hester Hemminger, treasurer; and Treva Stiles, second vice-president. The officers gathered at a lighted wreath on which ten white doves were placed, one each in memorial to the 10 members who died during the past 12 months.

An annual prize-drawing fund raiser held by the York Farm Women generated more than $1,400, which in turn was donated to two area social-service agencies. Accepting donations on behalf of the recipient organizations were left, Joy McCreary, for the New Hope Ministries, and Shelly Acquilera, a former client and now staff member of New Life for Girls.

Treva Stiles, Glen Rock, and a member of Group 18 was elected vice president. She formerly served as her group president and as the county treasurer.

Moving into the presidency for a two-year term is Lois Manifold, Airville, former first vice president. She follows retiring president Arlene Keener, who completed her two-year leadership term. Rounding out the officer team are Delores Sutton, Dover, secretary, and Hester Hemminiger, Glen Rock, treasurer.

Several state leaders of the Society Farm Women, as well as presidents and guests from numerous other counties, updated the York members on related Society activities. State tour chairman Edith Diehl announced plans for a June 1998 tour to the area of Mackinac Island and the Wisconsin Dells. Naomi Bupp, York County member and state cookbook chairman, related that sales of the Farm Women's cookbook have surpassed 21,500. Profits generated from the cookbook sales enabled the state's scholarship fund to recently award $6,000 in college scholarships to deserving children and grandchildren of Society members.

Among the 80-year-old members honored by the York Society of Farm Women at its annual convention were, from left, seated, Alice Gale, Group 20; and Loyle Moyer, Group 31; standing, Ruth Coble, Group 15; and Pat Hoffmaster, Group 21.

Living examples of the benefits of the fellowship and fun provided by Farm Women membership are tow of the 90-year-olds honored by the York Society, Pauline Rishel, Group 1, left and Viola Druck, Group 7. Arlene Keener, outgoing York Farm Women president, offers congratulations.

Members who reached their 80- and 90-year birthday milestones during the past year were honored as part of the convention festivities and were awarded pins to commemorate the achievement. Reaching the 90-year mark were Pauline Rishel, Group 1, Catherine Bender, Group 5, Viola Druck, Group 7, Blanche Myers, Group 11, Romaine Painter and Mouise Massa, Group 12, and Elsie Fink, Group 14. In a more somber ceremony 10 former members of the society who died during the past year, two of them charter members, were memoralized. A white dove was placed on a large wreath in honor of each of the deceased society sisters. Memoralized during the ceremony were Grace M. Bentzel and Ethel Baker, Group 1, Alice Krout, a charter member of Group 11, Velma B. Sechrist, Group 14, Ethel Maul, Group 15, Connie Ewing and Ida Kearns, Group 17, Edna R. Decorating, Food, Gift Ideas To Brighten The Holidays

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — For many persons, the day after Thanksgiving spurts frenzied attempts to prepare for the Christmas holidays. About 1,400 people who attended the annual Lebanon County Extension Holiday Program recently went away with plenty of ideas to make the holiday transition easier and lovely.

The day-long workshop repeated three days and two evenings at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center offered both visual displays and information-packed sessions for decorating, gift giving, cooking, and adding meaningful enjoyment for the holiday season.

Marjorie Shiner, professional florist and owner of The Nosegay Florist in Bernville, had a spectacular display of incorporating dried and fresh flowers with greenery and gold-sprayed materials.

Shiner suggests using an artificial garland as a base for attaching flowers, dried materials, and ornaments. The greenery on the garland can be used as a twistie to hold the items in place.

"Incorporating dried and silk materials adds interesting texture to arrangments," Shiner said. "Gold is definitely in vogue and gold spray paint may be used to paint fresh and dried materials such as flowers, twigs, leaves, pinecones, and ornaments."

Some of Shiners other decorating ideas showed how flower arrangements can be made transeasonal by adding lights, ornaments, and holiday greens. Shiner demonstrated how table arrangements appear more elegant the taller the candles.

If fresh greens are inserted in Oasis and kept watered, they will last a year inside a home. Kept outside, the greens will seldom need to be watered during the winter months.

Sewing for children

Julia Organtini, Fredericksburg, is a sewing instructor and sews for others. Most importantly, she is a mother of four daughters, for whom she sews. Julia shared tips on sharing money and time when sewing for children. To begin with Julie buys multi-sized patterns so she can trace the size needed and keep the original as a master pattern. She sticks to basic patterns and makes adjustments to create both simple and elaborate styles.

Another hint that she uses often is to make simple seasonal outfits reversible.

"It doesn't take much longer to complete and it will double the length of time your child can wear the outfit," she said.

This works especially well with a seasonal print such as a Christmas print on one side of a vest, pants, and skirt and a solid color on the other. Use elastic for waists so that the skirt or pants can easily be used on either side.

Julie showed a girl's dress and jacket that she fashioned after a name brand outfit that sells for $200 in the store. She paid less than $20 to complete the animal print outfit.

Tree decorations

Several trees were decorated for the holidays. One featured all paper ornaments made by Christenna Stamm and another featured whimsical critters made from dried materials. Here are instructions for creating reindeer by using dried teasel as the body.

Dressing up your home for the holidays results in spectacular results for Marjorie Shiner who combines dried and fresh materials with lights and gold-sprayed materials.

Alletta Schadler, Lebanon County extension home economist, recommends the Pumpkin-Praline Cake as a sweet ending to a holiday dinner. The recipe makes two 9-inch round layers that may be assembled into a layer cake.

Janet Dorsey demonstrates making birdhouses from gourds.

Christenna Stamm shows how paper ornaments can be made to decorate for the holidays.

Reindeer Made With Dried Materials

Materials:
- 1 small teasel
- 1 large teasel
- 2 dried daylily stems
- 2 golden chain tree seeds
- 1 small dried red seed
- 2 white pinecone petals
- 4 soybeans
- 1 pussy willow
- 8-inch lightweight, green floral wire

Equipment:
- clippers
- pointed scissors
- glue gun
- wire cutters
- clear acrylic spray

Using clippers, cut stem and bract from two teasels. The larger teasel will be used for the body, the smaller for the head.

With scissors, trim the smaller and larger teasels where the head and body join. The trimming enables a stronger bond when glued.

Using hot glue, glue the trimmed areas of the teasel together. Hold until glue is set.

For antlers, cut dried daylily stems to 1½ -inch. Use hot glue on ends of stems and insert into small teasel.

With points of scissors, make small holes in front of antlers for the eyes, glue in golden chain tree seeds using hot glue. Make a third hole for the nose and glue in red seed.

Trim white pinecone petals for ears, hot glue petals behind each antler, slightly to the outside of each daylily stem.

Using hot glue, glue in the four soybeans for legs.

Using hot glue, glue in pussy willow for the tail.

With wire cutters, cut an 8-inch piece of lightweight, green floral wire. Wrap 2-inches of wire once around body behind the neck and twist tightly. This is the hanger.

Spray entire critter with clear acrylic spray.

use gourds for one season and discard, gourds may be used after harvest. If plans are to store and use many seasons, the gourds must be dry.

The following steps for drying, curing, and using gourds are from Penn State Extension vegetable specialists.

Harvesting Gourds

Harvest time for gourds is critical if you want maximum and decorative quality. If gathered too soon, they will be too soft, will shrivel and soon decay.

If left on the vine too long, they will lost their color quickly in the sun or be killed by frost.

To ensure full maturity, harvest as late as possible before fruits begin to lose color and before frost. Mature gourds are hard and firm, their stems gray and dry and the vines will have begun to deteriorate.

Cut off the gourds with clippers or shears, leaving the stems attached to the fruit. Harvest on a clear day when the vines are dry and handle the gourds carefully to prevent bruises.

Curing gourds: After harvesting gourds, wash them in soapy water and rinse in a strong solution of a non-bleaching disinfectant such as Lysol. Dry the surface with a soft cloth and store the gourds for 4 to 6 weeks in a well ventilated room on racks or in crates.

Place the gourds to receive maximum air circulation and not touch each other. Dry in single layers or hang from strings.

The curing area should be dry to discourage mold and mildew, warm to encourage drying, and out of direct sunlight to retain color. When completely dry, gourds will loose their bright color.

Be careful not to scratch or injure the gourds as blemishes are pemanent and injury can cause rot. Discard immature or soft gourds as they become noticeable. Do not try to hurry the drying process by putting them in the sun or on a radiator.

Preparing gourds for use: Usually a thin outer skin that becomes curled or rough and shaggy while gourds are curing. To remove this skin, soak the gourds in hot water and scrub with steel wool.

When thoroughly dry, gourds may be waxed or clear-varnished to enhance colors, or painted to create any number of designs. Rub smooth shells with fine steel wool to create a surface for the varnish to adhere.

Gourds may be carved at this time. Before carving or doing any craft work, make an opening through which the seeds and dried remains of tissue can be scooped out. A small opening such as a drill hole can by made during the curing process to hasten drying. Make sure the location of the opening will not interfere with the intended use of the gourd.

Decorating, Food, Gift Ideas To Brighten The Holidays

Gourd uses: Brightly colored or odd-shaped gourds are used as additions to table arrangements, in fruit bowls or cornucopias, or combined with fruit and flowers to complement or contrast with each other in color, design, and form. They also make attractive fruit-bowl fillers by themselves.

You can paint the gourds to resemble graceful or imaginative animal forms. Or join them together with glue to string to form interesting shapes.

Birdhouses or feeders: After bottle gourds are cured, they can be turned birdhouses or birdfeeders. Drill a hole through the top for a hanging cord and cutting a hole in the side. The hole should be about 1¼ -1½ -inches in diameter for a wren or bluebird house. For a bird feeder, make the hole 3 or 4 inches across.

Since food is so much a part of holiday celebrations, home economists Frannie Dietz and Letie Schadler demonstrated how to cook and bake holiday specialties. Here is a recipe that Letie said is suitable for both serving and for gift giving if you like to give gifts from the kitchen.

Pumpkin Praline Cake

1 cup packed brown sugar
½ cup butter
¼ cup cream
¾ cup chopped pecans
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
1 tgeaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1⅓ cups sugar
1 cup cooking oil
4 eggs
2 cups canned pumpkin
¼ teaspoon black walnut flavoring or orange oil

Whipped cream topping

In heavy saucepan, combine brown sugar, butter and cream. Cook over low heat just until sugar dissolves, stirring occasionally. Pour the mixture into two round baking pans. Sprinkle mixture evenly with pecans. Coll the mixture slightly. In a medium mixing bowl, stir together flour, baking powder, spices, baking soda, and salt. Set aside.

In large mixing bowl, beat the sugar, oil, and eggs. Add pumpkin and flour mixture alternately with the oil mixture, beating just until combined. Stir in flavoring, if you are using some.

Carefully spoon batter over the pecans in the baking pans. Place pans on a baking sheet and place in 350 degree oven. Bake for 35-40 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the middle of the cake comes out clean. Cool in the pans on wire racks for 5 minutes. Invert onto wire racks, replacing any topping that remains in the pan. If it hardens, return the pan to the oven briefly until it softens. Cool completely.

To assemble as a layer cake, place one layer on a cake plate with nuts up. Spread with whipped topping. Top with second layer, nuts up. Dollop with additional whipped topping. Sprinkle with pumpkin spices.

Do not assemble more than one hour ahead of serving time. If using whipped cream, whip one cup whipping cream until soft peaks form and then add 2 table spoons sifted powdered sugar and ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Beat until stiff peaks form. Keep cake chilled.

Variation: Place in a 13x9x2-inch pan instead of layer pans. Place the pan on a baking sheet in the oven to catch any spill overs and protect the bottom from over heating. Test cake with toothpick for doneness. After the cooling time of 5 minutes, turn out onto the serving platter. Carefully move any praline topping from the pan onto the cake top. Serve cut into squares with a dab of whipped cream or topping and a dusting of spices. Very moist— a real taste treat. The cake was a prize winner submitted by Diane Weer at the Morton, Illinois Pumpkin Festival.

Fresh-cut Christmas trees come in different shapes, sizes and species: In particular the fresh green foliage on dense trees can be extremely thirsty.

An alternate Christmas tree may be growing in a large nursery container. Plant outdoors after keeping for two weeks or less indoors. Small trees — potted or cut — are suitable for apartments. And, although trees 5 to 8 feet tall are commonly sold, trees 12 to 25 feet are available from some Pennsylvania growers.

When selecting a Christmas tree choose a tree cut fresh from a Christmas tree farm. A wide variety of trees are available. Christmas trees grown on Pennsylvania plantations include douglas fir, concolor fir, scotch pine, fraser fir, white pine, norway spruce, white spruce, canaan fir, blue spruce, balsam fir and others.

Purchase extra branches for decorating, use in homemade wreaths, or decorative sprays. Use fresh evergreen roping to accent doorways or mantels. But, remember, branches quickly dry and can become a fire hazard.

Although Christmas trees don't start fires, a few safety precautions during the holidays are worth remembering. Keep the foliage of a natural Christmas tree turgid with water absorbed from the "stump" (butt of the tree). Freshly cut the stump at least 1-inch just before placing it in a stand filled with water.

(Fresh, green needles normally will not sustain combustion, unless a constant source of heat is present to desiccate the foliage). Trees use two pints to one gallon of water per day in most homes.

Keep sparks, flames and heat from a stove, fireplace, cigarette, or frayed electrical cord (such as a decorative lighting) away from a Christmas tree.

As a fire-safety alert technique, periodically test the natural green needles of a Christmas tree or other holiday decorations of green needles. First, roll a few needles on a branch between your fingers. If they are resilient and do not fall off the twig or branch, the needles are probably turgid with water. Second, you can remove a small branch of an inch or two long, place it in the sink or take it outside. See if the needles will sustain combustion when subjected for a moment to heat and flame from a match. If the needles only burn when heat is constantly supplied, the fresh, water-turgid foliage is relatively safe. Be sure the Christmas tree is not likely to ignite from a portable electric heater.

The Pennsylvania Christmas tree growers association also reminds us to check all electric lights and connections before decorating your tree. Do not use lighted candles on your tree. Do not overload electrical circuits. Place your tree away from fireplaces and other heat sources. Turn off all decorations before retiring at night or anytime you leave your home.

For a copy of the Pennsylvania Grown Christmas Tree Guide, contact your extension office or the PA Christmas Tree Growers' Association by calling the consumer hotline, Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. at 1-800-547-2842.

Fat Facts Or Fiction

KAREN BRACEY
Penn State Extension

TUNK HANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) – Sometimes it seems as though dietary fat is the most important thing in everyone's lives. Newspapers and magazines are filled with articles about the dangers of eating too many high-fat foods.

Supermarket shelves overflow with reduced-, low- and non-fat foods, and virtually every person you talk to is trying to trim the fat from his or her diet! With all of this attention to fat, one would think that Americans are pretty well versed on the subject. Nevertheless, misconceptions about fat–especially about reduced-fat foods and their role in the diet–pop up frequently in conversations and articles on health. Here, with the help of some nutrition and food experts, are the facts with which to combat the "myth-information" about dietary fats and low-fat foods.

Myth· Americans have successfully cut the amount of fat in their diets.

Fact: While may of us could benefit if this were true, in actuality Americans are not eating less fat, but have decreased the percent of calories that comes from fat in our diets. This may sound like semantics, but it is not–there is a real explanation. Between 1970's and the 1990's, Americans decreased their intake of total fat from about 37 percent of calories to about 34 percent of calories. Yet, during this same time period, average adult calorie intake increased by approximately 300 calories. This increase in caloric consumption explains why the decline in percent of total calories from fat can be confusing. Fat consumption actually increased from around 81 grams per day in the late 1970's to about 83 grams per day in the early 1990's. As you can see, there is still room for improvement with regard to nutrition.

Myth: Reduce-fat foods are always low in fat.

Fact: These foods are definitely lower in fat, but that does not necessarily mean they are "low in fat". To know the facts, read the nutrition label and compare the fat content of tow similar products with the same serving size.

Myth: Fat-free and lower-fat foods are the solution to obesity.

Fact: These foods can definitely play a part in an overall effort to lose weight, but consuming them will not undo a myriad of other dietary downfalls, or make up for a lack of physical activity Successful weight loss– and weight maintenance–depends on achieving the right mix of diet and physical activity. To lose weight, you need to take in less energy (eat fewer calories) than you expend (or "work Off"- through physical activity. Combining dietary modifications to reduce calories and fat with a consistent physical activity plan is usually the most effective way to lose weight.

For many people, reducing their fat consumption is easier and more "painless" when they can substitute fat-free or lower-fat versions of foods for their regular-fat counterparts.

Aside from the fact that a diet consisting mainly of fat-free and lower-fat foods will not guarantee slimness, experts remind us that a healthful diet is not defined by the number of fat-free foods it contains. We should strive to consume foods that are not simply low in fat but are, on balance, high in nutrients. One way to think about reduced-fat foods in this context: The lack of fat in a food provides the eater with more opportunities to get nutrients from other foods, while keeping the fat content of the diet in line.

Myth· Americans are getting fatter because they are overeating fat-free and low-fat foods.

Fact: Americans do weigh more than ancestors, and surveys indicate Americans are eating more calories. However, the increase cannot be attributed to overeating fat-free and low-fat foods. There is a definite lack of data to support the idea that low-fat and fat-free foods are making us fatter. In fact, the increase in American obesity rates precedes the influx of fat-free and low-fat foods in the marketplace. Obesity occurs when far more calories are consumed than are used by the body. Research shows that lower-fat, lower-calorie foods can help cut total calorie intake when they are eaten as part of a well-balanced and calorie-controlled diet.

So , if low-fat and fat-free foods have not "backfired" on those of us trying to lose weight, what is increasing our national girth? Many experts believe that a lack of daily physical activity is a major factor in the weight gain equation. Physical activity has not increased to a large extent in the population as a whole, as noted in the 1996 Surgeon General's Report on Physical Activity.

Myth: Low-fat means low calorie.

Fact: Not always. Reducing the among of fat in a food does not necessarily mean it is lower in calories. In fact, a lower-fat food can have nearly as many calories as its higher-fat counterpart. How can this be? In order to manufacture fat-free and low-fat products that are acceptable to consumers in taste and consistency, other ingredients may be added or modified. The best bet is to refer to the Nutrition Facts panel on the product label. It lists fat and calorie content, as well as, what portion size is considered a "serving". Also, make moderation a motto at mealtime–do not go overboard with any food, whether it is low in fat or not.

Myth: Fat-free means taste free.

Fact: If you have not tasted a fat-free food for some time, you probably remember the experience as somewhat less than satisfying. Food manufactures acknowledge that many of the first fat-free products on the market did not meet consumers' taste expectations. However, the commitment to making good-tasting fat-free foods is clearly evident in today's marketplace, and has resulted in some undeniable tasty products.

PA Dairyman Discovers New Trick

Production Up, Costs Down

David Stoltzfus of Gap, Pa., (like many other Dairymen) has found a way to increase milk production while reducing cost!

Since he started using Vitamix and Formula M David Stoltzfus of Gap, Pa., has seen his milk production increase. The increase was at least several lbs. per day, per cow but was impossible to determine exactly how much increase he had. Interestingly it only takes 1/2 cup milk per milking to pay for the Formula M. Any noticeable increase would be more than that.

David reports, "His cows' get pregnant the first time he breeds them." Also, David had several cows with serious cases of mastitis and since using Vitamix, the mastitis has cleared up quickly.

Mr. David Stoltzfus said "After giving Vitamix to his calves with scours the scours have cleared up quickly."

The only defense the cow has against infections like mastitis and contagious diseases such as the cold, flu, etc., etc., is white blood cells. Antibiotics damage the immune system and reduce the ability to produce those white blood cells. That is why so often, cows have relapses after going off antibiotics. You can avoid that damage to the immune system when you quit using antibiotics.

You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix. Vitamix is a natural blend of vitamins, minerals, enzymes and proteins. Vitamix costs less than antibiotics and you can get Vitamix without a prescription because it is all natural and completely free of all drugs.
Vitamix is made by the same people who make Formula M.

ESTABLISHING AND INTERPRETING RULES

If you are too careful, you are so occupied in being careful that you are sure to stumble over something.--Gertrude Stein

When was the last time you helped to co-author a rule, institute a policy or establish some aspect of a program and had the very rule, policy, or program "come back to haunt you"? Were you careful in writing the rule, policy or program to accomplish its intended purpose or goal?

Did you think through all of the possible ramifications of the rule, policy or program? Did you consider carefully as many of the alternatives as possible to the rule, policy or program?

A rule is a guide or principle for governing action. With respect to junior livestock programs, rules typically serve "to level the playing field" and provide equal opportunity among participants to achieve. Furthermore, rules can be established to provide some minimum, maximum, or optimum condition for participation. However, rules are subject to interpretation, and sometimes there are as many interpretations to certain rules as there are people who read them. Also, certain rules are written to accomplish particular goals, but can actually move a program and its participants farther away from the stated goal or objective.

When writing rules for junior livestock programs and projects, ask yourself the following questions prior to adoption:

a. What is our goal, and will this rule help us to accomplish our stated goal?

b. Is the rule subject to individual interpretation?

c. Are there any implied messages contained within the rule?

d. Can we enforce this rule, and if we enforce this rule what are the consequences?

My intent is not to embarrass anyone who may have assisted with writing or establishing particular rules, but it is to heighten our awareness of the care needed when writing rules to govern our junior livestock programs. Let's examine a few rules that have been adopted for junior livestock programs in Pennsylvania and also utilized elsewhere in the United States.

Rule #1 -- The minimum qualifying weights for the fair will be 1050 pounds for British breed-sired steers (Red & Black Angus, Polled Hereford, etc.) and 1200 pounds for Continental breed-sired steers (Simmental, Charolais, etc.).

a. What is our goal, and will this rule help us to accomplish our stated goal? Because I wasn't involved with the process of developing and writing the rule, I can only speculate as to its purpose. I envision that the purpose of rule #1 is to try to ensure that the majority of junior show steers at the fair are adequately finished for market, the show, and especially for the junior market steer sale.

I personally believe that this rule may help to accomplish the intended goal, but it probably will not suffice. First, there is as much variation among breeds as there is within a breed; therefore, some Angus-sired steers may not be correctly finished at 1300 pounds; whereas, some Simmental-sired steers may be correctly finished at 1150 pounds. Second, what about two reciprocal-cross steers: An Angus-sired steer out of a Simmental cow compared with a Simmental-sired steer out of an Angus cow. The Angus-sired steer would be eligible to compete at a minimum weight of 1050 pounds; whereas, the Simmental-sired steer would need to weigh 1200 pounds in order to be eligible. Three, although body weight can be a good indicator of finish, a trained judge should be able to determine whether cattle are correctly finished, more accurately than what weight can as a single indicator.

b. Is the rule subject to individual interpretation? No.

c. Are there any implied messages contained within the rule? No. d. Ca n we enforce this rule, and if we enforce this rule what are the consequences? Yes.

Three of the four criteria have been met for rule #1, but because attain our desired goal, the rule should be re-considered prior to adoption.

Rule #2 -- In preparation for competition, an exhibitor may placeon feed, by October 31, not to exceed four lambs per individual (combined 4-H and FFA), wethers and/or ewes, from which one lamb will be selected for exhibition. Lambs must be identified by a legible noseprint submitted on an official form (one lamb per card) to the show director postmarked by October 31.

a. What is our goal, and will this rule help us to accomplish our stated goal? The goal of the stated rule is to ensure that all eligible participants in the show have ownership and possession of their lambs by a certain date.

b. Is the rule subject to individual interpretation? No, the rule clearly indicates the limiting parameters for number of lambs, sex of lambs, date, and noseprint specifications.

c. Are there any implied messages contained within the rule? Yes!

The implied message contained within rule #2 is that the exhibitor must own and have in his/her possession by October 31 the designated lambs!

d. Can we enforce this rule, and if we enforce this rule what are the consequences? As written, we can enforce the rule. If we include the wording "own by October 31", we may or may not be able to enforce the rule. Furthermore, if we include the wording "own and have in his/her possession", we can still enforce the rule.

The implied message in rule #2 makes it somewhat ambiguous and subject to interpretation. Word choice is extremely important when writing rules. Clearly define all limiting parameters to ensure consistent and uniform interpretation of rules.

Rule #3 -- Individual barrows must be farrowed on or after March 1 (of the current year, for a show the first week of October).

a. What is our goal, and will this rule help us to accomplish our stated goal? I imagine the rule is intended to reduce the number of barrows over seven months of age that show.

b. Is the rule subject to individual interpretation? No.

c. Are there any implied messages contained within the rule? No.

d. Can we enforce this rule, and if we enforce this rule what are the consequences? Maybe. If someone brings purebred barrows with registration papers and the barrows were farrowed before March 1, then they would be ineligible to show. Conversely, what if someone brought a crossbred barrow (no papers), could we enforce the rule? Yes, we could enforce the rule by conducting an eye lens nitrogen test. However, nowhere in the rules is there a statement indicating that barrows may be subject to an eye lens nitrogen test to verify age. Also, there is no specific mention of the ramifications of entering or showing a barrow that is too old.

The proposed wording for rule #3 is: Individual barrows should be farrowed on or after March 1, as one goal of this barrow show is to showcase fast-growing, lean, heavily muscled hogs that typify the ideal of the swine industry. Therefore, rule #3 actually serves as a guideline, rather than an enforceable rule.

Rule #4 -- Youth must do their own fitting for participation in Fitting and Showmanship classes

a. What is our goal, and will this rule help us to accomplish our stated goal? Our goal is obviously to reduce the assistance of professional fitters for youngsters participating in a class designed to evaluate their own fitting ability.

b. Is the rule subject to individual interpretation? Yes. Where do we draw the line in terms of assistance? Can older brother or sister help? Furthermore, what are the safety implications for young 4-Hers fitting their own cattle without assistance?

c. Are there any implied messages contained within the rule? Yes. The implied portion of the rule is that if someone other than the exhibitor fits the animal for competition in Fitting and Showmanship classes, the exhibitor will be disqualified from competing.

d. Can we enforce this rule, and if we enforce this rule what are the consequences? Yes, only within the context of the fair and the confines of the fairgrounds. How do we know if youth have done their own fitting? We can only observe young people at the fair. It is physically impossible to watch every young person fit

Rule #5 -- Entries must be postmarked on or before July 24, 1996. Failure to provide complete and accurate information (i.e., registration number, dam/sire name, ear tag, tattoo or permanent marking, birth date) on each and every entry on each entry form(s) (blue) by August 9, 1996 shall result in the disqualification of each entry missing all or part of the information required.

a. What is our goal, and will this rule help us to accomplish our stated goal? The goal for this rule is to have all fully completed entries at the fair office within a reasonable length of time following postmarking (subject to the speed with which the USPS delivers the mail).

b. Is the rule subject to individual interpretation? Yes, because of the discrepancy in dates. I could have an incomplete entry postmarked by July 24, and complete the information by August 9, and still be eligible to exhibit. Conversely, another person could have a fully completed entry that wasn't postmarked until July 25, and shouldn't be eligible to exhibit.

c. Are there any implied messages contained within the rule? No.

d. Can we enforce this rule, and if we enforce this rule what are the consequences? Enforcement parameters are clearly defined, but the dates make this rule somewhat problematic. rules for junior livestock Bottom line. Ask yourself the following questions when writing projects:

1. What is our goal, and will this rule help us to accomplish this particular goal? Correct answer: Yes.

2. Is the rule subject to individual interpretation? Correct answer: No.

3. Are there any implied messages contained within the rule? Correct answer: No.

4. Can we enforce this rule, and if we enforce this rule what are the consequences? Correct answer: Yes.

If the answer to any of the aforementioned questions is "incorrect", do not include the rule as written; either modify the rule and ask the same questions again, omit the rule completely, or include suggested parameters as guidelines rather than rules.

Finally, I would heed the warning of numerous participants, exhibitors, species superintendents and show officials when they say, "The fewer the number of rules, THE BETTER!"

1998 Classic Tractors Calendar, Video Are For 'Kids' Of All Ages

The 1998 Classic Farm Tractors Calendar, and its companion video called "Classic Tractor Fever," capture the attention of all ages — men, women and children.

This is the ninth edition of the Classic Farm Tractors Calendar, created by John Harvey while with DuPont to promote Classic soybean herbicide. "New chemistry has almost replaced the herbicide, but the calendar just keeps going and going — like the pink bunny in the TV commercials," says Harvey.

This large format calendar (14 x 22 inches) features 15 beautifully-restored tractors: a 1911 Titan, a 1918 Square Turn, a 1953 John Deere 40N, a 1948 Intercontinental, a 1961 Cockshutt, a 1939 John Deere BNH, a 1949 Sheppard Diesel, a 1953 Big Four, a 1930 Twin City, a 1958 Allis-Chalmers D-17, a 1954 Farmall 400, a 1930 John Deere GP-P, a 1953 Oliver, and a 1951 Allis-Chalmers with a 2-row mounted corn picker.

Five of the featured tractors by local owners are pictured. In the calendar all tractors are shown in color, and there is a farm safety theme and monthly safety reminder. This is the original "Classic Tractor" calendar featuring vintage tractors of various makes and models. The calendar sells for $9, plus $2 shipping and handling.

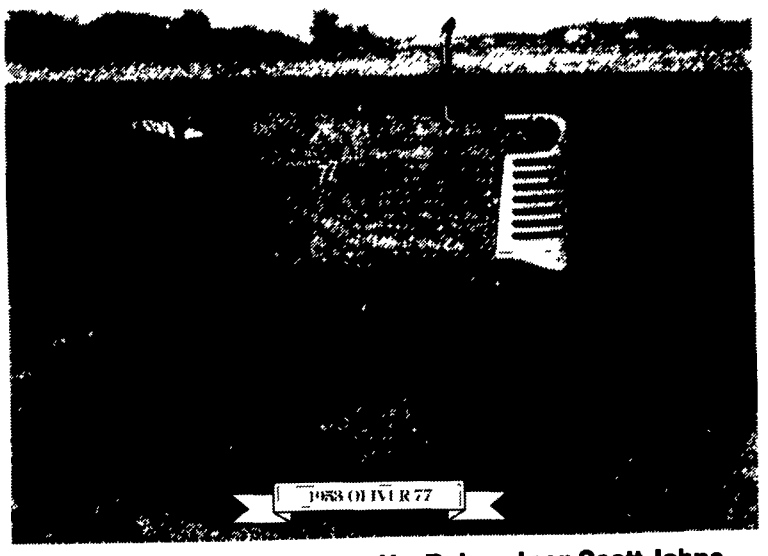
New Video Features Old Tractors

The Classic Tractor Fever video is a solid hour of pure entertainment featuring people who have a passion for antique tractors. Children as well as adults are fascinated by the video. Professionally produced, numerous makes and models of tractors from various parts of the country parade before the camera.

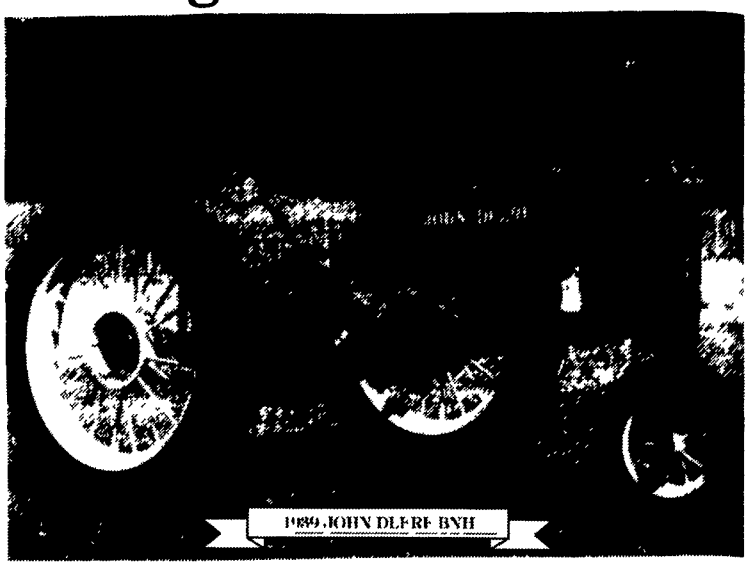
Owners drive and describe their tractors — many of which are "tractors Dad had." The tractors that appear on the 1998 Classic Farm Tractors Calendar are highlighted, along with their owners. Educational and entertaining, it is spiced with humor to boot.

The video sells for $25, plus $4 shipping and handling.

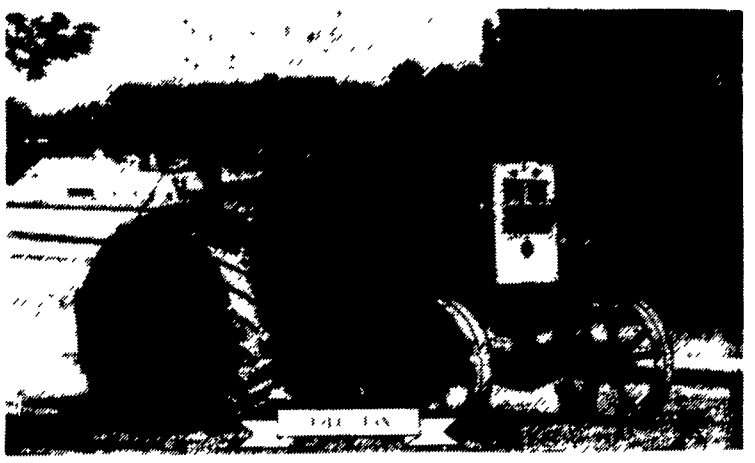
Both products can be purchased by sending check or money order to: Classic Tractor Fever, Box 437, Rockland, DE 19732. For credit card purchases, call: 1-800-888-8979.



The 1953 Oliver 77, is owned by Bob and son Scott Johnston, Findlay, Ohio. This father and son worked together restoring the handsom Oliver, making it one of those great father-son projects. They brought it in the spring, had it finished by October. Both agree it required "a lot of sanding!"



1939 John Deere BNH. Tom Jarrell, Wilmington, Delaware, owns this beauty. Tom retired last year so he plans to spend more time with his "toys!" Wife Doris documents restoration jobs with before/during/after photos. Something of a perfectionist, when Tom completes a job, it's done to a tee.



1911 Titan. Leroy Baumgardner, Jr., Hanover, Pennsylvania, is a serious International Harvester enthusiast. He likes early tractors, engines, and trucks. He collects IH photos, literature, and memorabilia. Leroy is active in several tractor groups, including Rough & Tumble Engineers, Kinzers, Pennsylvania.

LIVESTOCK ❖ NOTES

Winter: Seasonal Concerns

For the horse owner in a cold environment, winter may be the most demanding season. Challenges range from frozen water supplies and treacherous footing to poorly ventilated barns. Here are some tips on coping with the cold.

• Diet: Water — Just breaking the ice is often not enough. Icy water is simply not palatable to most horses. Either add some very hot water to the bucket periodically or invest in water heaters. Decreased water intake is a common cause of colic in winter.

Hay — The colder it gets, the more your horse will benefit from ample feedings of good quality hay, not grain concentrate. It is the hay, not the grain, that generates the most body heat from digestion.

Salt — If you provide outside salt blocks, your horse might freeze its tongue on the block. Providing loose trace-mineralized salt is a safer method of ensuring adequate intake.

Electrolytes — Unclipped or partially-clipped horses that exercise in winter often get HOT and SWEATY. Don't forget their electrolytes even in the winter months.

• Hoof Care:

Are snow-packed soles a problem? Ask your farrier about "snow pads" or try spraying cooking oil on the hoof soles before going out.

Be careful with borium. Drawn, shallow ridges on heels and/or toes are great, but never as sharp spikes. Spikes and keg shoe heels are a common cause of concussion and sprain injuries.

Many horses do fine barefoot in winter, but they still need regular triming. If not pushed, horses quickly adapt to winter ground surfaces. However, most horses wearing corrective shoeing should not be barefoot in winter.

• Clipping/Blanketing:

Remember that absolute low temperature does not chill your horse; a wet or matted down haircoat or lack of fat layer will.

Layer of fat + day, health coat + warm horse.

If you body clip, you must blanket. Two to three layers are better than one heavy blanket.

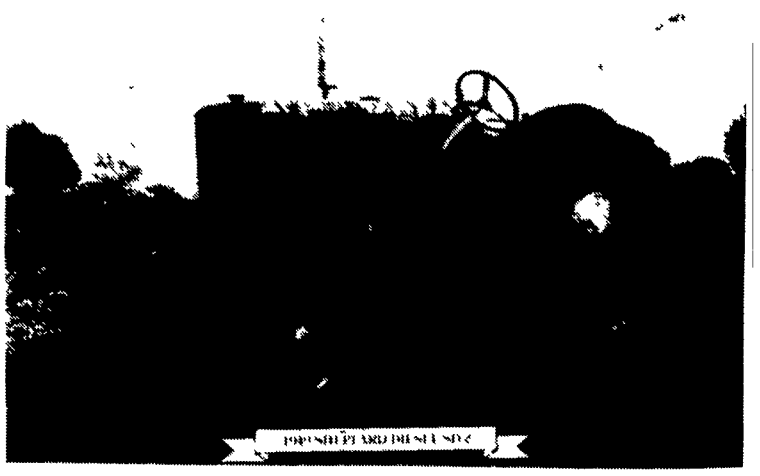
Planning to use your horse, but don't want to body clip and blanket? Try a trace, blanket or hunter clip — but remember to leave the legs long.

• Ventilation:

Respiratory disease brought on by overhead, poorly ventilated stabling remains one of the greatest winter health problems for horses. Stale air, ammonia fumes, concentrations of molds and other microorganisms all challenge an animal's respiratory immune system. Chronic coughing, bronchitis or pneumonia can result.

Remember that cold temperatures are not a problem for otherwise healthy horses, so open the windows and doors.

If your horse goes off feed, develops a cough or runny nose, or looks dull — take its temperature. React accordingly.



1949 Sheppard Diesel SD-2. Jim Bowersox, Lititz, owns this tractor and it is special to Jim because his grandfather, R.H. Bowersox, was treasurer of the Sheppard Co. "My parents also worked for the Sheppard Co., so this was a real special project. We hope this tractor stays in the family for a long time," Jim says.

Farming's Past, Present, And Future

DAVID T. MESSERSMITH
Union County Extension

Change is the only thing that you can count on to remain the same Nowhere is this more apparent than down on the farm

During the past 100 years, farming has undergone dramatic changes. Major discoveries in genetics and inventions such as tractors, electricity, fertilizer, and pesticides have all appeared within the last century.

These technologies have become so common on today's farm that it is hard to imagine what farming was like 100 years ago.

In the early 1900s, farmers toiled endlessly at tasks such as planting, hoeing, and harvesting, most of which required a great amount of hand labor. Much of the food produced was consumed by the farm family. Horses and mules were the prized possession of the day, and the one-bottom plow was the field tool of choice.

Today, farmers still plant and harvest but the way they go about these tasks is much different than it was 100 years ago. Machinery costing hundreds of thousands of dollars replaced the horse and plow, and a keen financial mind is more necessary than a strong back. In return for this large investment in equipment, farmers are much more efficient. In 1910 it took 135 hours of labor to produce 100 bushels of corn. Today it takes less than 5 hours of labor to produce the same 100 bushels of corn. During this same time period crop yields have increased by as much as 300 percent.

Farms are also becoming larger and more specialized. The average farm size in Pennsylvania in 1959 was 119 acres. By 1992, the average Pennsylvania farm increased to 160 acres in size. At the turn of the century, diversity was the key to success and farmers raised an array of crops and livestock. Diversity was a way of guarding against crop failures and fluctuations in market prices. A failure in one crop did not necessarily spell disaster. However, for the sake of efficiency farmers today have had to become more specialized. In fact our farmers are so efficient that less than 2 percent of our nation's population can supply all of us with food. Compare that to greater than 90 percent in 1900.

During the next 100 years, farms will undoubtedly become larger and more specialized. Computers, radar-guided equipment, and biotechnology will become commonplace. Technologies that have not yet been discovered will increase crop yields and make our farmers even more efficient. Major advances during the next century will surely make today's farm seen as archaic as a 1900 era farm is to us.

NEW EASY OPPORTUNITY FOR BETTER GRAIN QUALITY

New John Deere Ten Series Maximizer Combines

New Generation II Concave promotes quicker separation, increased threshing, and improved grain quality. Wide spaced bars and a new geometry especially help in high-moisture crops.

You'll enjoy improved threshing control and grain quality with a new digital indicator. Precisely position the concave within a wider range of settings.

The new Quadra-Flo™ Plus cleaning system features easy-access handles that speed and simplify shoe adjustments. Again, better grain.

Ask us about the other advantages of theses new Ten Series Combines.

Dear M.M. Weaver & Sons:

1997 marks my 5th year custom harvesting. This year I chopped over 1,500 acres of hay and 1,800 acres of corn.

I appreciate the versatility of the 860 Claas which enabled me to chop 3rd cutting hay on one client's farm in the morning and easily switch to chopping corn on another farm that afternoon. A large fuel capacity, auto-lube system and blade sharpening from the cab conserve energy and time, precious commodities in seasonal work where every minute counts.

The RU 450 is a time-saving assest where the conservation practice of strip farming is necessary due to the hilly terrain. It would have been impossible to cover as many acres as quickly with a conventional cornhead.

The 860 Claas proves to be a totally reliable machine backed up by the efficient service, technical support, and dedicated personnel that you provide.

I thank you for the important part you have in my growing custom harvesting business.

Jerry Spencer

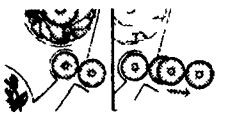
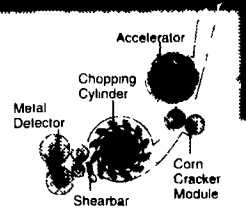
The corn cracker can be changed in 5 minutes to switch from corn to hay The Jaguar s efficient processing produces quality silage for higher milk production





The efficient cutting system has a full width metal detector, 30" wide chevron cutting drum and full width 8-blade accelerator

The unique top-to-back cooling system with rotary air screen assures excellent, clean cooling

Service is easy because compartment covers quickly swing open to provide easy access to the engine and cooling system

The operator can safely sharpen the chopping knives and precisely adjust the shearbar from the driver s seat automatically

Loaders Job-Matched To Massey Ferguson Tractors

New Massey Ferguson 1000 Series loaders are custom designed for Massey Ferguson tractors from 55 to 180 PTO horsepower. Under load, each MF tractor and loader work as one integral unit to deliver maximum strength and stability.

ATLANTA, Ga. — New Massey Ferguson 1000 Series Loaders are custom designed for Massey Ferguson tractors for superior performance and durability in the loading, lifting, moving, dumping, digging, leveling, and scraping jobs farm loaders perform every day.

The new MF 1000 Series Loaders are built to use the entire tractor chassis as a structural support. Under load, the tractor and loader work as one integal unit to deliver maximum strength and stability.

"MF 1000 Series Loaders are job-matched to MF tractors so there's no need to compromise loader strength to tractor size and horsepower," said Richard Petree, Massey Ferguson product marketing manager. "Massey Ferguson tractors and loaders are designed and built to operate as a team for unsurpassed performance."

MF 1000 Series Loaders will fit the following Massey Ferguson two- and four-wheel drive tractors from 55 to 180 PTO horsepower: MF 300 Series, new MF 4200 Series, MF 6100 Series and MF 8100 Series. High-performance benefits include:

- Increased breakout force, lifting capacity and faster cycle times with hydraulic cylinders sized to a tractor's hydraulic system.
- Faster loader hookups with the proven MF Quick-Attach system and patented Quick Couple™ control valve assembly with all four loader hoses connected to a single mounting coupler.
- Single lever control of all loader functions with the optional joystick control and valve assembly. Frees tractor remote valves for other uses.
- Better visibility from lower-profile loader arms, self-leveling linkages and mounting kits matched to the lower hood lines of new MF tractors.
- Automatic leveling on MSL model loaders maintains even bucket angles throughout the lift and lower cycles.
- Faster dump time is provided by a new regenerative function in the patented "Quick-Couple" valve.
- Greater durability and increased stability from high-tensile strength loader booms with wide-spaced boom arms and heavy-duty cross member to increase load stability and resist twisting from off-center loads.
- Greater strength from tapered boom construction that concentrates strength at the loader mast and from new one-piece mainframe arms.
- Longer-lasting paint finish. High-tech powder paint process bakes paint into the metal to resist chips, wear and fading. MF loaders retain their bright, shiny, new look years longer.

Company Hosts Distributor Meeting

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Cummings & Bricker, Inc. recently hosted a Vicon North American Distributor meeting in Carlisle.

The three-day event included both classroom and field demonstrations conducted by Vicon and Deutz-Fahr factory personnel. Vicon's new KMR Center-Pivot Mower Conditioner and the Rotoflow twin disc fertilizer spreader were introduced.

A two-day Vicon and Deutz-Fahr Dealer meeting followed, with 35 dealers in attendance from Cummings & Bricker's trade area.

Deere Introduces 80-, 90-Foot Booms For Sprayer

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has announced new 80- and 90-foot booms for its 4700 Self-Propelled Sprayer. The booms, available beginning in November 1997, can be ordered factory installed on new sprayers, or they can be retrofitted on 1997 models beginning next January.

"The introduction of the 80- and 90-foot booms is a response to the most frequent request from our customers," said Wes Carney, product support representative at the John Deere Des Moines Works.

The 80- and 90-foot models are identical except for the length of the outer folding sections. The unique, three-dimensional cross section of both booms provides structural strength, unlimited nozzle spacing capability, and enhanced nozzle protection. Shaped like the numeral four for added strength, each boom is designed to withstand the stress of starts, stops, and turns, and twisting loads caused by folding or unfolding operations.

The strong center frame permits folding the boom wings simultaneously, or one at a time. For working small acreages and in confined areas, the outer boom sections can be folded in to provide a 60-foot spraying width. The outer wings fold rearward in a 45-degree arc, which transfers less twisting motion to the boom than horizontal-folding booms and reaches a much lower maximum height than booms that fold vertically.

New 80- and 90-foot booms for the John Deere 4700 Self-Propelled Sprayer feature a three-dimensional cross section that provides structural strength, unlimited nozzle spacing capabilities, and enhanced nozzle protection.

The booms have three different types of suspension: vertical, center-pivot roll, and yaw. The vertical suspension features an accumulator in the lift-cylinder hydraulic lines, which cushions the boom ride vertically to provide a consistent spray height, while still protecting the boom. The booms also incorporate a center-pivot roll suspension, which gives the boom the ability to follow the same attitude as the machine on sidehills and terraces. A yaw suspension ties the left and right wings together, providing more uniform wingtip speeds in the field and reducing structural stress during turns.

The booms also feature independent wing-leveling cylinders that permit each wing to be raised up to 10 degrees above horizontal. Optional longer cylinders permit each wing to be lowered as much as 5 degrees below horizontal and raised up to 10 degrees above horizontal. An optional roll-bias kit allows the operator to tilt the entire boom up or down 5 degrees for effective, level boom operations over terraced ground.

Other features include a 7-foot-long breakaway section on each outer wing to protect the boom from damage, and a new transport cradle that supports the greater length of a folded 80- or 90-foot boom. The cradle can be mounted in a low position to place boom height level with the cab for shipment on trailers, or a high position to provide easier access into the cab, while maintaining an overall folded height of 14 feet.

The booms come equipped with TeeJet-compatible triple nozzle bodies spaced 20 inches apart on 1-inch polypropylene pipe. A custom, dealer-installed spacing kit is available for nozzle spacing of 18, 19, 20, 22, 36, 38, or 40 inches.

No-Till Folding Drills Make Transport Easy

ATLANTA, Ga. — Tye no-till drills have to be rugged to stand up to the rigors of no-till farming, and they have to be flexible for fast transport to remote fields.

The Tye 2024 and 2030 no-till folding drills are built to be rugged and flexible. At 24 and 30 feet, they are also built to work big fields, but the unique Tye folding design reduces transport to less than 18 feet.

"These drills are designed to get in fast, get the job done and get out," said Andy Anderson, Tye marketing manager. "Capacity is of the essence when it comes to fieldwork, and we understand that at Tye. That is why we build our equipment rugged, to keep going under the toughest conditions. It is also why our farmers asked for a bigger grain box and we gave it to them."

The new Tye 2024 and 2030 no-till folding drills feature a 2.8 bushel per foot self cleaning grain box for more acres between fills. The wider 14-inch fill opening makes that time consuming task go faster, too. Lights, flashers, safety chain and a wider folding walkboard make the job safer.

Tye drills are noted for accurate, gentle seed metering and handling, and that hasn't changed. What has changed is the new individual adjustment of down pressure (up to 400 pounds per row) on each row unit to assure optimum seeding depth. This pressure also keeps each row unit in the seed track. All the changes enhance seed placement for quick germination and uniform emergence.

The solid, rugged 7 x 7-inch frame, combined with duals on both the center section and the wings, offer superior flotation. Heavy duty coulters cut through residue and double disc openers follow the coulter to create an optimum seed environment. Quick-Adjust presswheels assure solid seed-to-soil contact and the optional harrow finishes the job.

Dealers, Farmers Attend Site-Specific Farming Seminar

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — More than 30 farmers and equipment dealers sharpened their precision farming skills at a Case IH Advanced Farming Systems (AFS) Circle Seminar held recently in Lancaster.

AFS uses space-age satellite technology to help farmers maximize productivity.

"Since 1995 when Case introduced AFS as the first fully integrated system for growers, we have been setting the standard for precision — or site-specific — agriculture," said participant Mark Bonson, sales manager of Chambersburg Farm Service.

AFS also was one of the first complete systems with multi-layering capabilities, which allow growers to evaluate more than one type of data at the same time.

Growers who invest in AFS technology are not only invited to participate in AFS Circle Seminars, they also have access to a toll-free help line, a monthly newsletter, postings on the Case Web site, and e-mail.

The AFS Circle Seminar held in Lancaster offered sessions for both new and experienced AFS users. Topics covered in the new users' session included understanding the information that yield monitors provide, configuring yield monitors to achieve harvest objectives, and generating harvest summary reports.

The advanced session covered new hardware and software features, helped experienced AFS users master their yield monitors, and provided tips for managing multiple years of data.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. – Five individuals who each have made significant contributions to the Angus breed were selected by the American Angus Association board of directors for induction into the Angus Heritage Foundation, which identifies and honors those who have made a difference in the improvement and advancement of Angus in the United States.

Special ceremonies honoring the inductees were held during the American Angus Association's Annual Banquet Nov. 17 in Louisville, Ky.

The 1997 inductees include Russell Denowh, Sidney, Mont.; A.F. "Frankie" Flint, Brad, N.M.; and Dr. Don Good, Olsburg, Kan., as well as Milton "Milt" Miller, Brady, Texas, and Vern Kerchberger, Sioux Falls, S.D., who will be inducted posthumously.

Each inductee, or their family, will receive a framed Angus Heritage Foundation certificate and their name will be engraved on a permanent Heritage Foundation plaque in the American Angus Association headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo.

Photos and brief biographies of the inductees will be included in the 1997 edition of the Angus Heritage Foundation booklet that lists inductees from the Foundation's beginning in 1983.

A short biography of each of the 1997 Angus Heritage Foundation inductees follows:

Russell D. Denowh

Russell Dale Denowh, Sidney, Mont., partnered with his father-in-law, Joe Gartner, to establish Gartner-Denowh Angus Ranch in 1955, with a family goal to develop a line of cattle with strong maternal traits. Their first production sale was held in 1967 and since then, the ranch has sold genetics all over the United States and internationally. In 1974, Joe Gartner sold out and Russ' sons, Michael and Paul, are now partners in the ranch. The Gartner-Denowh herd was one of the first herd to enroll in the Angus Herd Improvement Records program and Russ, for his dedication to improving the breed, was honored by the Beef Industry Federation as the Montana Seedstock Producer of the year in 1981. The American Angus Association's Fall 1997 Sire Evaluation Report lists 85 bulls bred by the ranch, and these sires have had more than 16,500 daughters in production to date Russ served as Montana Angus Association president for two terms and as a director. In 1996 he received the Wayne Stevenson Memorial Award of Excellence.

A.F. Flint

A.F. "Frankie" Flint is known as a performance-minded Angus breeder, a conservationist and a man devoted to his church and community in his hometown of Bard, N.M., where he was born and the family's Angus ranch still operates today. He purchased his first Angus in 1942 and since than has marketed his cattle in 47 states and two foreign countries. His efforts to promote performance record keeping led him to help start the Tucumcari Bull Test, one of the most respected bull testing programs in the United States. He is a former chairman of the New Mexico Angus Association and served as a director of the American Angus Association, where he played a leading role in getting the Association to establish its blood-typing program. In 1980, he was recognized as New Mexico Cattle Growers "Man of the Year." He also received the Beef Improvement Federation Seedstock Producer of the Year award in 1982 and was honored with the Performance Pioneer Award in 1988.

Dr. Don Good

Dr. Don Good, Olsburg, Kan., is recognized as an educator and a leader in the livestock industry, not only in the United States, but worldwide. He was born on a farm in Van Wert County, Ohio. After spending four years in the service during World War II, he earned his bachelor's degree at The Ohio State University in 1947, his master's degree from Kansas State University in 1951 and his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota in 1953. He served on staff at Kansas State University for 40 years, including 20 years teaching and as a livestock judging team coach, and 20 years as head of the Department of Animal Sciences and Industry. He has been honored by his peers in animal science countless times and judged livestock shows worldwide. He was a pioneer in promoting carcass evaluation following market animal shows, and in 1969, he selected an Angus-Charolais cross steer as grand champion of the Chicago International, a landmark event in the acceptance of crossbreeding. Good and his family own and operate a registered Angus herd near Olsburg, Kan.

Vern H. Kerchberger

Vern H. Kerchberger helped bring Angus cattle to a place of prominence on ranches and in feedlots in the Midwest, as well as across the United States. His life in agriculture began growing up on the farm in Hay Springs, Neb. He graduated from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1942 with a degree in animal husbandry. He taught at Iowa State University and coached meat and livestock judging teams, receiving his master's degree from there in 1946. After leaving Iowa State, he served as a county extension agent in South Sioux City, Neb., for several years. In 1950 he married Mary Ann Parks and soon after joined the staff of the American Angus Association where he worked for 34 years as a regional manager.

Milton E. Miller

Milton Edward "Milt" Miller was born near Caseyville, Ill., in 1909. He graduated from Pennsylvania State University in 1932 and was later inducted into the Pennsylvania State University Alumni Hall of Fame "for his many contributions to the development of the cattle industry worldwide." He married Eva Mae Carley in 1934 and joined the staff of the American Angus Association in 1943 as a regional manager in the eastern United States. In 1949, he and his family moved to Brady, Texas, where he was a regional manager in the states of Texas and New Mexico. During his tenure, Miller moved to St. Joseph, Mo., where he worked out of the American Angus Association headquarters as Director of Field Services, then relocated back to Texas after his retirement in 1976.

Jim and Sharon Osborn, Queen Acres Farm, Union Bridge, MD.

PERFORMANCE UPDATE!

Queen Acres Boomer Celeste, has set the all time United States Jersey production record! Her 6-7 365 day production record is an incredible 38,030 mil, 1,732 fat and 1,333 protein! What an incredible record!

The Osborne's RHA for their 115 cow Jersey herd is currently at 18,895 milk, 704 fat, and 871 protein. This places them sixth in the nation for protein, seventh for milk and tenth for fat for herds between 80 and 149 cows!
